

ONE OF RICHEST MEN IN WORLD FALLS INTO SEA FROM AIRPLANE

Capt. Alfred Lowenstein, Belgian Capitalist, Mysteriously Lost on Way to Brussels From London.

OPENED EXIT DOOR, DROPPED 4000 FEET

Death of Banker Thought to Have Been Caused by His Mistaking Entrance to Washroom on Craft.

By the Associated Press.
CALAIS, France, July 5.—The world police inquiry into the death of Capt. Alfred Lowenstein, who was killed in a fall from his private plane last night, ended this evening without any statement being made by the Police Commissioner.

The passengers on the plane testifying before Special Police Commissioner Parenty, expressed their belief that death was accidental.

Beyond permitting Pilot Drew and Robert Pawcett, the mechanic, to take the plane back to Crocydon and allowing the stenographers, and secretary to leave Calais, the police gave no inkling as to the result of their investigation. No magistrate has been named thus far to make further inquiry into the tragedy, which is the usual procedure in France.

The interpretation generally of the police attitude is that they are reconciled to the theory of accident.

LONDON, July 5.—Capt. Alfred Lowenstein, world famous Belgian financier, fell from his private airplane while crossing the North Sea from England to Belgium last night and was drowned.

Traveling as he always did with a retinue, Lowenstein took off from Crocydon airfield in one of his planes, a Fokker, at 6 p. m. Brussels with a British pilot at the controls. Two girl stenographers were aboard so that he could attend to his business while in flight. The plane also carried his maid and a mechanic.

When the plane was crossing the North Sea, Lowenstein fell from the cockpit and started for the washroom in the rear. He never returned. Apparently he opened a door by which passengers leave the plane and fell into the sea.

For a while those remaining aboard the plane were ignorant of what had happened and continued flying. When they discovered the tragedy, the pilot headed at once for the French coast. He landed on the beach of Dunkirk, France, and the beach. The pilot explained the customs officers there that he had decided to land on the French coast because of the accident.

In the meantime the banker's staff was awaiting his arrival at Brussels. Finally as the hours passed and Lowenstein failed to appear they began telephoning to friends along the Belgian and French coasts and learned of the tragedy.

The newspaper L'Independence Belge at Brussels said today that Lowenstein had important business in Brussels and had tried unsuccessfully to obtain a $50,000 loan in London.

Banker's Health Failing.
Lowenstein had been showing signs of ill health lately because of increasing activity. It was thought that the rejection of his loan by the French and Belgian governments to lend them a vast sum to stabilize their currency was a great disappointment to him.

The door out of which the financier fell is secured by bolts on inside and a patent handle lock. The plane was in charge of Pilot Drew, who was in charge of the Lowenstein plane, said no one was quite sure as to the exact

HOW IT FEELS TO GO OVER NIAGARA IN A RUBBER BALL

Jean Albert Lussier, Who Did It, Got "Good Jarring Up" in Six Bounces at Bottom of Falls.

NO SENSATION AT ALL ON THE WAY DOWN

He Made Plunge Head First With Cushions and Straps Protecting Him From Injury.

By the Associated Press.
BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—Except for bruises, Jean Albert Lussier of Springfield, Mass., was none the worse today for his experience of Independence day, when he went over Niagara Falls in a huge rubber ball and lived to tell of his sensations. He is one of few men who have dared the mighty cataract and come out alive.

The occupant of the 758-pound fabric ball was towed out into the upper river by motorboat, having abandoned a plan of being dropped from an airplane. The ball rolled and bounced through the upper rapids and over the Horseshoe Falls, which carries 94 per cent of the water of the river. A weight had been placed at Lussier's feet to keep the occupant upright, but it became dislodged and Lussier went over the brink headfirst.

100,000 Witness Feast.
A short time later the ball was reclaimed a short distance below the precipice, was ripped open and the Springfield man hauled from within, smiling. One hundred thousand or more persons, lining the shores cheered. His sister, Madame J. P. Cautiere of Sherbrooke, Quebec, kissed him. Many other women tried to do likewise. Not a few succeeded.

"I have spent more than a year and more than $7000 on my venture, Lussier explained today. "I have succeeded and I am happy. I have demonstrated that my theory was correct. I could do it again. I am sure. But once was plenty for me."

"As the ball was carried down stream in the rapids it was bumped about quite a bit. Just before I plunged over the falls I received an extra severe bump. It gave me a nasty bruise on my right temple, another on the right cheek and one on the left shoulder blade."

Felt No Sensation.
"I had really no sensation when I went over the falls. When I landed on the water at the bottom I got a good jarring up. The ball struck the water and bounced up and down six times just like a ball being bounced on the sidewalk by a child. I went over the falls head first but straps and pillows saved me from serious injury."

"I got my first idea of going over the falls while working in machine shops at St. Catharines, Ont., at the time Bobby Leach went over in a barrel for the trip and the fact that I did not get injured as badly as did Leach is proof that my theory was correct."

Lussier is of French descent and was born at Concord, N. H., Oct. 27, 1893.

Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor was the first to plunge over the cataract and live to tell of her experience. That was in 1901. She made the trip in a staunch wooden barrel. Leach went over in a steel barrel 17 years ago. Mrs. Taylor realized no monetary benefit from her feat and died in the Niagara County almshouse. Leach made considerable money as a result of his plunge. He died two years ago as a result of injuries received when he slipped on an orange peel while on a vaudeville tour in Australia.

George Henry Stevens, Bristol, England, barber, lost his life in an attempt to go over the falls in an oak barrel made in England 10 years ago.

NEW RADIO SYSTEM PLANNED

Wall Street Hears of Scheme for Telephone and Telegraph Hookup.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 5.—It was reported in Wall Street today that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Radio Corporation of America plan to link up the important cities as before about 20 States with a new system of wireless telephone and telegraph service now being perfected by Marconi. The new service is expected to be in use within a year.

The new wireless service is said to be based on the beam system, which has occupied the attention of Senator Marconi for some time and which has already revolutionized wireless communication. The Radio Corporation has already placed orders for the new equipment. It was said in banking circles.

SHOT TO DEATH AS HE SLEEPS AT DOOR OF HOME

Valentine Gross, 4911 Alcott Avenue, Had Made Pallet on Floor to Escape the Excessive Heat.

KILLING ATTRIBUTED TO GANG FEUD

Widow Thinks Husband Was Taken for an Italian Who Formerly Had Lived Next Door.

By the Associated Press.
A man who sneaked onto the front porch of the home of Valentine Gross at 4911 Alcott avenue, early today, fired a pistol shot through a screen door, killing Gross, who was sleeping on the floor just inside the door.

The slayer escaped, and police so far have been unable to fix a motive.

The possibility that Gross was killed when mistaken for someone else was suggested by his widow, who thought the murder may have been connected with the Italian gang feud. The Gross family occupies one of a row of cottages. An Italian who lived next door, and formerly owned the Gross cottage, moved with his family to Chicago Tuesday. The assassin may have been seeking the Italian, Mrs. Gross thinks.

Made Bed on Floor.
Gross, who was 53 years old and employed as a laborer at the Maloney Electric Co., had no enemies, according to members of his family.

Because of the excessive heat, Gross left his bed in the front room at midnight and made a pallet for himself near the front door. His wife continued asleep in the same room; their son, Delmore Gross, his wife and two small children were asleep in a rear room.

At 1:45 o'clock, Gross was lying on his pallet, with his head a few inches from the locked screen door. When a shot was fired on the porch, Mrs. Gross thought it was a torpedo.

Mrs. Gross, awakened by the explosion and the flare, assumed it was a flared Fourth of July demonstration. She called to her husband: "Daddy, do you hear that torpedo some boy threw on the front porch?"

There was no response. "What's the matter, papa?" Mrs. Gross cried out again, seeing that his pillow was stained with blood. There was no answer.

As his wife crossed the room to his side, Gross raised himself from the floor, but slumped back against the door frame, moaning. He was taken unconscious to city hospital, where he died at 6:05 o'clock. No statement was obtained from him.

He had been shot in the top of the head.

Son Describes Slayer.
Delmore Gross, who ran to his father's bedroom on hearing the shot, reported seeing a man running away from the house. He described the man as being about 20 years old, five feet six inches tall, weighing 125 pounds, and wearing a dark suit and cap. Mrs. Gross also told of seeing a man running away.

The close range at which the assassin fired was indicated by the fact that both Gross' head and the screen door were powder-burned. The bullet passed through the screen door a foot above the floor.

HICKMAN'S DEATH SENTENCE UPHOLD IN SUPREME COURT

Kidnap and Murder of 12-Year-Old Marian Parker to Be Re-Sentenced Within 30 Days.

AWAITS EXECUTION AT SAN QUENTIN

Decision Sustains Not Only the Conviction but the Validity of New California Insanity Law.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 5.—The State Supreme Court today upheld the conviction of William Edward Hickman, who kidnaped and murdered 12-year-old Marian Parker in Los Angeles.

He is in the death house at San Quentin prison awaiting execution. The decision upheld not only Hickman's conviction on the murder charge but also of the constitutionality of California's new insanity law under which Hickman was tried. It was principally on the asserted unconstitutionality of this law that the appeal was taken.

The Supreme Court remanded the case to the trial court in Los Angeles where Hickman will be re-sentenced. Under the rules of procedure this does not have to be done for 30 days. Meanwhile Hickman is expected to remain at San Quentin.

Hickman confessed the crime but entered a plea of not guilty to the murder charge, also of not guilty by reason of insanity, on the advice of his attorney, Jerome Walsh of Kansas City, Mo. Hickman was found guilty of the murder, and then was tried by the same jury in St. Louis County tomorrow or at latest, by Monday.

The grand jury, called by Judge Mulloy, has held several preliminary sessions, at which eight witnesses have testified. Special Prosecutor Nolan said the grand jury has a long list of witnesses to examine.

The records of Prosecuting Attorney Fred Mueller's office were placed before the grand jury this afternoon after it resumed its sessions in the Juvenile Courtroom of the Clayton Courthouse. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Charles Noble was summoned to testify and bring the records. This was the first indication that the inquiry had touched the Prosecuting Attorney's office.

Special Patrolman Bert Bellville of the University City Police Department also appeared to tell what he knew about slot machines and gambling in Olive City, now part of University City.

She was one of 40 pleaders who appeared before noon, paying fines aggregating $120, to save themselves the necessity of appearing in police court. It was the third day of the bureau and the busiest.

18,874 AIRPLANE PASSENGERS IN A YEAR; NOT ONE KILLED

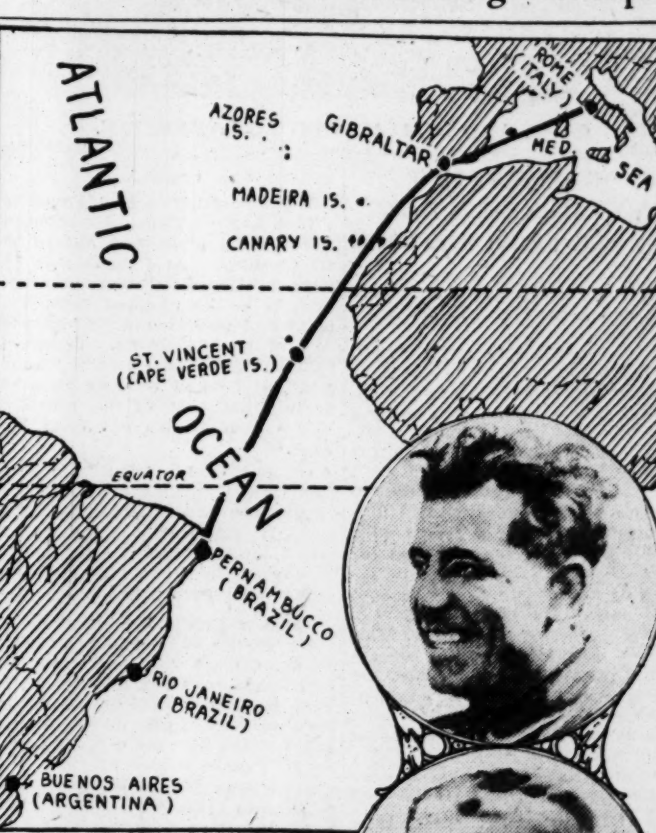

LONDON, July 5.—In a report recording the growth of British civil aviation, the air ministry announces that in 1927, for the third year in succession not a single passenger was killed during 445 commercial flights. The report shows that 18,874 passengers were carried, a considerable increase over the year before. The commercial planes flew 760,000 miles. The value of goods carried, including bullion, to and from the continent, was over $9,000,000. The Government paid about $1,250,000 in subsidies to air services not including nearly $500,000 for the Egypt-India service.

WIDENING AND REPAVING OF DE BALIVIERE AV. BEGUN

The widening and repaving with asphalt of De Baliviere avenue, between Pershing avenue and Delmar boulevards, was begun today and will be finished in two or three weeks, Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks announced. Immediate action was ordered because of the damage to wood block paving by recent heavy rains. The Public Service Co. has virtually completed its re-arrangement of tracks and the stretch from Lindell boulevard to Pershing has been repaved with asphalt. Between Pershing and Delmar, seven feet will be cut from each sidewalk.

Assigns Assistant Cunningham to Take Part in County Investigation.

Acting on a request of Gov. Baker, Attorney-General Shattell at Jefferson City today assigned one of his assistants, Lieutenant Cunningham, to aid Special Prosecutor John A. Nolan in the present special grand jury investigation of graft in reported official protection of organized lawlessness in St. Louis County. The request for assistance from the Attorney-General's office was made by Circuit Judge Mulloy and Special Prosecutor Nolan. Cunningham is expected to report to the grand jury in St. Louis County tomorrow or at latest, by Monday.

ITALIANS HEADED TOWARD BAHIA AFTER FLIGHT OF 4635 MILES

Liners and Land Stations Get Wireless Reports From Pair Setting a New Distance Record.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 5.—A special to La Nacion from Pernambuco, Brazil, received at 5:30 p. m. (2:30 p. m. St. Louis time), said that the Italian seaplane Savoia-64 was continuing directly to Bahia, Brazil. Radio stations on the north coast, transmitted greetings to the flyers from Italian Colonists in the coast cities.

By the Associated Press.
PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, July 5.—The Italian trans-Atlantic plane, the Savoia-64, was sighted over Port Natal at 4:05 o'clock this afternoon (1:05 p. m. St. Louis time), and it was expected that a landing would be made here about 5 o'clock.

A Rio Janeiro dispatch to La Nacion at Buenos Aires, quotes a National Telegraph message from Port Natal as stating that Capt. Ferrarin radio operator aboard the Italian plane sent the following message this afternoon: "Arriving over Brazilian territory. We send you greetings."

The National Telegraph announced this afternoon that the Fortalezca radio station heard strong signals from Capt. Ferrarin, at 2:50 o'clock this afternoon (11:50 a. m. St. Louis time). Radio signals picked up by the station at Olinda shortly after 9 o'clock this morning (6 a. m. St. Louis time) indicated that the Italian trans-Atlantic flyers, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Maj. Carlo P. Del Prete were approaching the coast of Brazil. They took off from Monticelli Field, Rome, Tuesday.

Olinda is a small town a little to the north of this city. The Italian colony gathered at the airfield this morning to welcome their countrymen. At 6 a. m. (3 a. m. St. Louis time) when the flyers had not been sighted, the crowd began growing impatient.

The sighting of Capt. Ferrarin and Maj. Del Prete, over Port Natal, which is approximately 150 miles north of Pernambuco, marked the closing stage of one of the most brilliant flights in the history of aviation.

The Italians had estimated that a direct flight from Rome to Pernambuco would carry them 4635 miles, the longest non-stop distance flight ever made, breaking by more than 700 miles the distance record from New York to Germany of 2909 miles established by Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine last year.

First Direct Flight From Continent.
The flight also marked the first time that the South Atlantic has ever been spanned directly from the continent of Europe to the mainland of South America, although a direct flight has been made from the mainland of Africa to the mainland of South America. This was accomplished by the French aviators, Dieudonne Coste and Joseph Le Brix.

Ferrarin and Del Prete also hold the endurance record of having remained in the air in their trans-Atlantic plane for 43 hours 34 minutes and 24 1/2 seconds recently.

ARRANGES TO MEET GOV. ZIMMERMAN

Wisconsin Executive Is Guest at Summer White House for Today and Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 5.—President Coolidge invited Gov. Zimmerman of Wisconsin to be his guest today and tonight at the Summer White House.

Instructions had been left by Mr. Coolidge for one of the White House cars to be sent to Superior to take the Governor to Cedar Island Lodge. To avail himself of the invitation the latter had remained overnight in Superior, where he had come to attend the Fourth of July celebrations.

Gov. Zimmerman was among the hundreds who yesterday conveyed their greetings to the chief executive on the occasion of his fifty-sixth birthday. Telegrams reached the White House by the score from all parts of the world, but Mr. Coolidge at the time paid little attention to them, preferring to pass his birthday in the quietest manner of any year since he became chief executive.

Has Birthday Party.
President Coolidge, however, abandoned his decision to have no special celebration on his birthday long enough to invite newspaper men and press photographers to the lodge. He shared his great birthday cake with them and took them along on a short fishing expedition.

In this way his guests saw him catch five fish in the course of about half an hour and witnessed his triumph when he drew two of these on the same line.

Catches Two Fish at One Cast.
The surface of the lake was periodically studded with the splash of jumping trout. Larock took the Chief Executive under the bow of his canoe with Rob Roy, his favorite colt, at his back, and John Larock, his Indian guide, paddling the shell from the stern.

Little luck came at first. Dressed in a red striped macinaw, khaki trousers and high laced boots and wearing a Western 10-gallon hat, Mr. Coolidge began perishing noticeably. Still he persevered.

His patience was soon rewarded. While drawing to the boat his first catch, a second trout snapped at the line in addition to the royal courtman fly on which the first fish had hooked. With great jubilation Mr. Coolidge waved his two victims at his observers.

Cuts Cake for Guests.
Three more catches followed in rapid succession. At each Mr. Coolidge's spirits heightened and Larock grinned widely. Finally Mr. Coolidge gave the word to turn back.

Mrs. Coolidge, dressed as usual in white, and her son, John, wearing a bright red sports coat, met the returning party. They marveled at the catch with exclamations of admiration. The fish were weighed and the largest proved to be a three and one-half pound rainbow trout.

Mr. Coolidge decided to close the party by eating his birthday cake. He called for it and two men brought out on a little table on the lawn a 17-pound cake of angel food bearing 56 candles.

Helped by Mrs. Coolidge and using a large kitchen knife, Mr. Coolidge cut the cake and slices were passed. John Coolidge was sent indoors by his father to get cigars. Even Rob Roy was not left out, and in answer to his insistence a special slice of cake was cut for him.

For a remembrance of the occasion Mr. Coolidge was finally photographed with his guests about him. No other visitors came to Cedar Island during the day.

Banker Drowned From Plane

CAPT. AND MRS. ALFRED LOEWENSTEIN.

spot where the financier fell from the plane.

"Capt. Loewenstein left 'Croydon' at 6:00 o'clock last night," Drew said. "When the machine was passing over the North Sea between Dunkirk and the Belgian coast, I was handed a note by Loewenstein's secretary, M. Hodgson, informing me that Capt. Loewenstein had fallen overboard. I immediately landed near St. Ingelvert and proceeded to Fort Marquy where, after informing the customs officials, I telephoned Dunkirk to have a search made for the body. This was of little use as when the accident must have taken place, the machine was flying at a height of about 4000 feet. No one was quite sure as to the exact spot where he could have fallen."

Aviation experts in France were inclined to think that the theory that the banker opened the wrong door of the plane in going to the washroom was improbable. The police said that the crew did not see Capt. Loewenstein disappear.

The death of Capt. Loewenstein shocked city circles today and the opening of the Stock Exchange was awash with some anxiety.

Dealers marked down the shares of those stocks in which he was most interested and international holdings were quoted at 140 against last night's 215, dropping later to 130.

Hydroelectric, another Loewenstein stock, were quoted at 32 against their overnight figure of 51. Brazilian tractions and Barcelona tractions, in which the Belgian financier was interested, both were weak, while artificial silk shares dropped but are now above the worst.

Mme. Loewenstein, who arrived at Calais this morning, ordered that the plane from which her husband was lost, return to London. "Let it be sold," she said. "I do not ever wish to see it again." The plane left for Croydon at 12:30 p. m. and will be disposed of immediately. Capt. Drew took it back.

In Berlin stock quotations reacted promptly. Favorite foreign stocks lost up to 10 points and Artificial Silks from 30 to 40 points.

Loewenstein Reputed to Be Richest Man in Europe.
Loewenstein was reputed to be the richest man in Europe, his wealth being estimated at only less than that of Henry Ford or the Rockefellers. He controlled steamship lines, was one of the chief shareholders in the Belgian railway system, owned manganese iron mines in Silesia, steel furnaces in the north of Spain, coal properties in the Saar Basin and in the Ruhr, and immense rubber plantations in the Congo.

He was born in 1877, his father being a small Jewish banker in Brussels. His immense fortune was built up by clever speculation. It took him 30 years to become the richest man in England. During the war he was engaged in London in connection with the provisioning of the Belgian army.

Offered $50,000,000 Loan.
Two years ago he was virtually unknown in the United States, but he achieved the limelight almost overnight when he offered to lend Belgium $50,000,000 free of interest for a period of two years to enable the country to stabilize the franc. Shortly after this he offered to lend France a similar amount at interest of only 2 per cent.

He began to be regarded as the logical successor in European finance to the late Hugo Stinnes. He replaced Sir Basil Zaharoff as European finance.

Loewenstein said he had built up his fortune by sound business "hunches" on industrial trends. As a young man he staked every thing on the future importance of artificial silk, hydroelectric power and methods of mass production.

Nearly Hit by Propeller.
When at home, he said, he always traveled in one of his two 20-passenger planes. He was accustomed to take with him on his trips between European capitals and money centers a corps of secretaries and typists.

While in America he traveled by a 10-passenger plane. He brought his personal pilot from abroad to fly the craft. At Philadelphia he tried to slip away from photographers as he alighted from his plane and walked directly between two of the propellers. Someone shouted "duck" and he saved himself, but he had been so near death that one of the whirling blades knocked his hat from his head.

On one of his trips from this country to Canada certain customs regularities were not complied with and his plane was temporarily seized. Everything was satisfactorily explained, however, and the plane was returned to him.

Was a Prolific Spender.
Loewenstein always spent prodigiously. On his American tour he had four secretaries, two typists, a chauffeur, a private detective, a masseur, an airplane pilot and two automobiles. His radio bill on the Ile De France totaled $3500.

He was said to own eight villas in Biarritz alone. He owned an estate in Leicestershire, England, and kept a string of horses there. He had a castle in Brussels and a house in London. To make sure that he had the best of instruction in sports he kept a retinue of boxing instructors, billiard experts, tennis players, golf and fencing professionals on his payroll.

Loewenstein was a great admirer of American business methods and said while in the United States that he had always made use of them.

Office Discards Theory of Suicide.
By the Associated Press.
BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 5.—Runners of the Cap. Alfred Loewenstein possibly killed himself were energetically denied today at the financier's office in Brussels.

It was stated the Captain was not alone at the head of his numerous affairs, but that he was assisted by a staff of secretaries, typists, and other personnel. The office was a large, modern building in Brussels, and the staff was well equipped for the work.

Brussels Stock Exchange Reacts Violently at News.
BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 5.—The Stock Exchange reacted violently on news of Capt. Loewenstein's death, despite notice that the financier's personal wealth had amounted to $50,000,000 and that the entire situation was being taken over by those associated with him without throwing any shares on the market. Shares in which Loewenstein was interested dropped from 20 to 40 per cent.

Prete intended to reach the Brazil coast at Pernambuco, about 4635 miles from their starting point, Monticello Field, Rome.

Twenty minutes after midnight the steamship Siliarius, which was north of Fernando Noronha Island, informed the Olinia, Brazil, radio station that it had been in communication with the airmen. Their position was not given.

They faced a flight of 1600 miles over the South Atlantic after being sighted at Cape Verde Islands at 5 p. m. Greenwich mean time (11 a. m. St. Louis time) yesterday. At that hour they had been flying for about 22 hours and had covered a distance estimated at 3000 miles. Their average speed was above 135 miles an hour.

At 4:15 p. m. St. Louis time yesterday, the steamship Tonic Star radioed that it had received a message from the flyers saying all was well. Their position was not given.

Kept to Their Course.
The airmen kept consistently to their course. They waited when they started from Rome, Tuesday night, that they would be passing Gibraltar about dawn and at 5:15 a. m. Greenwich time, they were sighted there.

At 5 p. m. Greenwich time, they were sighted at Villa Cisneros, Rio de Oro, Africa. They apparently headed for the Cape Verde Islands soon afterwards for a dispatch from St. Vincent a little later said they were sighted 350 miles to the north. They hoped to pass over the islands at twilight and a radio dispatch to Buenos Aires from the islands reported their passage at 8 p. m., after which they began their long and perilous flight over the South Atlantic.

PARIS, July 5.—Paris, which for years has celebrated Independence day with almost as much fervor as France's own national holiday, devoted yesterday to the dedication of a monument to the first Americans who fell fighting for France in the World War.

A multitude of Parisians went to the little village of Villeneuve-Le-Tang on the fringe of a wood overlooking St. Cloud Park to take part in the ceremony.

The monument is to the American aviators of the Lafayette Escadrille. It is a white arch of triumph flanked by colonnaded galleries. Beneath it lie, four by four as in air battle order, the bodies of Victor Chapman, Denes Down, Kiffin Rockwell, Norman Prince, James McConnell, Edmund Jenet, Ronald Hosier and 60 others who fought for France before the United States entered the war.

Sixty-seven Lost Their Lives.
In the front rank of the crowd were many Americans, including mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers of the fallen aviators. Then there was the stolid figure of France's war minister, Paul Painleve, surrounded by a glittering group of French officers in full uniform.

Ambassador Herrick stood there, too, with a phalanx of American aviators, many of them survivors of the Lafayette Escadrille. Squadrons of French planes droned overhead while a military guard of honor stood at attention.

Then after a band had played the "Star Spangled Banner" and guns roared out a salute, speakers recalled how the escadrille was formed, fought and died. Altogether 209 pilots served in its ranks and all died, 199 in enemy planes. Fifteen of the pilots were taken prisoner and 67 were killed.

All Eager to Aid France.
Ambassador Herrick told how in August, 1914, a group of young Americans came to him eager to fight for France but wanting to know if they had the right to do so.

"I read the law of neutrals to them," he recalled, "and did not mean to do more. My position was delicate. But just then I looked into those glowing young faces. I was caught by the fierceness of their own emotion and forgetting all judicial calm I said as I brought my fist down on the desk: 'That is the law, boys, but if I had your youth, I know I would do it.' At this they set up a shout and dashed downstairs."

Painleve, in an emotional tribute to American assistance, described the dark days of Verdun when France was wondering if she would stand.

Frank Davis, 53-year-old Negro fisherman who, with his brother, Chauncey, was recovered a more than 75 bodies of drowned persons from the Mississippi River in the past 10 years, was killed last night when knocked down by a locomotive on the Missouri-Pacific tracks in the rear of his shack, 5212 Water street.

Two trains were passing each other and it is thought that Davis, stepping from one track to avoid an oncoming engine, got directly in the path of another from the opposite direction. The noise of the first train, Chauncey Davis thinks, kept his brother from hearing the approach of the second.

Frank Davis and his two brothers—Chauncey and John—lived in a shack on the river bank for 40 years, making their living by fishing, dragging in driftwood and recovering bodies. For each body recovered they got $2. When a suicide jumps from a bridge, or when a "floater" is seen in the water off the docks, the Police Department notifies the Davis brothers.

"Frank had a good eye," Chauncey Davis said to the Post-Dispatch reporter. "He could see a body in the water half-a-mile away. We average about 6 to 10 bodies a year."

At 5 p. m. Greenwich time, they were sighted at Villa Cisneros, Rio de Oro, Africa. BOY, 17, SLAIN BY STRAY BULLET AT MEXICO, MO.

tim of July 4 Celebration.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

A stray bullet, fired presumably by an Independence day celebrator, killed a 17-year-old St. Louis County boy, George Beahan, at Mexico, Mo., last night. Beahan was shot as he sat in the yard at the home of his uncle, Elmer Beahan, with whom he was spending the holiday. The bullet entered the brain behind the right ear.

His father, Oliver Beahan, owner of a fruit and produce store at 6108 Page boulevard, and his 14-year-old brother, Robert, were digging worms in the garden for a fishing trip at the time.

Police canvassed the neighborhood, but failed to discover who had fired the bullet.

The Beahan family lives at 6730 Schofield place, St. Louis County. George was graduated from Normandy High School this year. His mother remained in St. Louis to conduct the fruit store this week in order that her husband and sons might enjoy a vacation trip. After the fatal shooting, the father and brother started to drive back to St. Louis. The body of the slain youth is coming by train.

The Lafayette Escadrille.
Then in the sky shaken by explosions, swept by sinister rays, appeared the first Lafayette Escadrille, the first voluntary unit formed by American aviators to figure under the French flag, but also under the invisible banner of 48 stars.

Bishop Manning of New York pronounced the benediction and other speeches were made by Dr. Edmund Groh, Mayor of the village, and Major Thénault, former commander of the Escadrille and now air attaché at Washington.

All over Paris, in a dozen different ceremonies, Frenchmen mingled with Americans in celebrating the Fourth. The Stars and Stripes flew over all public buildings and the whole city was flagged.

CHURCH CLEARS ITS PASTOR OF CHARGES MADE BY WOMEN

Calvary Baptist Congregation Understands Board of Deacons in Ex-onerating Dr. John F. Reagan.

The congregation of Calvary Baptist Church, Lillian and Emerson avenues, sustained the recommendation of the board of deacons to exonerate the pastor, Dr. John F. Reagan, of charges of "unministerial conduct," at a meeting at the church Tuesday night. The vote for exoneration was 131 to 35.

The recommendation of the deacons followed a meeting Friday night at which a number of women complainants presented written charges but refused to testify when an attorney representing them and a stenographer were barred from the meeting by the board. In a statement the deacons explained that evidence was not heard "because it was substantially contained in the written charge and for the further reason that the witnesses declined to follow the procedure we had outlined."

Several of the witnesses complained, however, that the real reason for barring the testimony was that the minister himself was represented by several colleagues from other churches and that the majority of the Board was favorable to Dr. Reagan before the hearing.

MOLEST STORM, WIND AND RAIN, SWEEP THE CITY

Negro Killed in Bed by Lightning in Brooklyn, Ill.—River des Peres Floods Lowlands.

2.9-IN. DOWNPOUR DURING FOUR HOURS

Temperature Falls 12 Degrees in Terrific Electrical Display—Owl Car Service Crippled.

A heavy local storm, accompanied by a high wind and a grueling rain, capped the Independence day holiday early this morning with a brilliant display of natural fireworks—lightning that literally crackled as it flashed, and thunder that roared almost continuously for two hours.

In Brooklyn, on the East Side, a Negro was killed in his bed by the lightning. Approximately 1350 telephones in the city and county were put out of order, and Fifteen trains were delayed by the rising waters of the River des Peres.

Coming after a day in which the temperature had reached 93 degrees, followed by a brilliant display of "heat" lightning at intervals for four hours before midnight, the storm brought instant relief from the heat. The mercury fell from 80 degrees, when the rain began at 2 o'clock this morning, to 68 at 5 o'clock.

22-Mile-an-Hour Wind.
Between 2 and 6 o'clock a total rainfall of 2.91 inches was recorded at the Weather Bureau. The maximum wind velocity was 22 miles an hour. For all its bluster, however, the storm did not extend far to the west of the city. At Valley Park, 18 miles west of St. Louis, only .14 of an inch of rain was recorded.

Fortunately for the thousands who went to parks and the country for the holidays the storm did not begin to gather until midnight. It was then that the rain came down in sheets of rain driven along before the wind and a blinding display of lightning.

The only casualty was James L. Martin, Negro, killed by lightning in his bed in his home at 310 Adams street, Brooklyn.

In St. Louis lightning struck the home of Rome Polite, 4344 Oregon avenue, setting the roof afire and burning the house.

Another bolt struck the boiler house of the Anheuser-Busch plant, damaging electrical machinery.

Oil Street Cars Tied Up.
Owl car service was crippled by the heavy rain and for a time the police and fire department signal system was partially disabled.

In Forest Park the River des Peres overflowed Grand drive between Sylvan and Round lakes with six inches of water, while the creek had reached almost to the floor of the foot-bridge at the Municipal Theater. Automobiles on adjacent park roads were driven through water in some places up to the hub caps.

Frisco trains were delayed an hour getting into St. Louis by the high water which made unsafe temporary River des Peres bridges between Sylvan and Round lakes.

The water also washed away a barrier erected to change the channel of the River des Peres into its new storm sewer near the Frisco bridge.

Second Overflow in 15 Days.
Today was the second time in 15 days that heavy rains brought the River des Peres over the banks.

On June 19 and 20, 2.91 inches of rain fell within 27 hours.

On the morning of June 20, all lower places in Forest Park were flooded by water from the river, and Round and Sylvan lakes were a single body of water, joining across Grand drive. In the district adjoining Gravois avenue, more than 40 families were driven from their homes during the night by the rising river.

Work of enclosing the River des Peres in Forest Park will be in the way as soon as the contractor finishes his project now under way south of the park.

Bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT JR.

C. VANDERBILT JR. MARRIES DIVORCEE

Reno Judge Who Granted Divorce to Mrs. Mary Logan, Performs Wedding Ceremony.

By the Associated Press.
RENO, Nev., July 5.—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. today was on his second honeymoon, at a lake resort near here.

The 30-year-old scion of the wealthy New York family married Mrs. Mary Wier Logan here Tuesday, shortly after she was divorced from Waldo Hancock Logan, brokerage agent of Chicago and Los Angeles.

In contrast to the brilliant ceremony in New York City in 1920, when hundreds of society folk crowded St. Thomas' Church to witness the marriage of Vanderbilt and Miss Rachel Littleton, only a few friends attended the court and church ceremonies here.

As soon as Mrs. Logan obtained a divorce on a charge of extreme cruelty, she and Vanderbilt obtained a marriage license and the judge who approved the divorce read the state marriage ritual. The pair then appeared before the Rev. William Mohr Case, pastor of the Federated Presbyterian-Congregational Church, who read the ritual of his church. The witnesses were former Gov. James G. Scrugham of Nevada, and G. Gordon Battle of New York, friends of Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt's second matrimonial venture came in less than a year after his first wife, the daughter of Thomas J. Littleton of Chattanooga, Tenn., and half-sister of Martin Littleton, New York attorney, was granted a divorce here.

She obtained a divorce on a charge of desertion contained in a cross-complaint to a suit filed by Vanderbilt November, last.

The first Mrs. Vanderbilt was married to Jasper Morgan, son of Edwin D. Morgan of New York, Jan. 20, last.

EXPLOSION PARTLY WRECKS BUILDING ON HODIAMONT AV.

$10,000 Damage Done to Stores and Vacant Rooming House by Incendiary Attack.

The two-story Hodiamont Building, at 1107-17 Hodiamont avenue, between Bartmer and Suburban avenues, containing five store rooms and a vacant rooming house, was partly wrecked at 2:15 a. m. today by an explosion which was heard for two miles although there was a heavy thunderstorm at that hour. The property damage is estimated at more than $10,000.

Remnants of what appeared to be an elaborate arson plant were found in the second floor rooms, including 16 one-gallon glass jugs, nine of which contained a liquid supposed to be acid. Two men were seen to run from the building just before the explosion.

The jugs, in groups of two and three, were packed in gunny-sacks suspended from the backs of chairs in various rooms. Each bottle was sealed with a rubber nipple and hanging upside down in excelsior, so that the liquid dripped slowly downward. Samples of the liquid were turned over to the City Chemist for analysis.

Leased to "A. Green."
The owner of the property, Harry Kram, of 1250A Biddle street, said he knew of no reason for the explosion. His rental agent, Maurice Hyman, 1236A Arlington avenue, had leased the 12 rooms of the second floor to a man named "A. Green" who proposed to open a rooming house there within a few days. The tenant had purchased second-hand furniture and equipped the rooms for renting, and had paid a rental deposit of $250.

One theory is that enemies of Green were responsible for the explosion. Green could not be found today. Hyman told police that Green had asked him to insure the contents of the rooming house for $3000 which Hyman had not done.

The only man in the building when the explosion occurred was Charles Campbell, night attendant in the garage and tire shop of George Flier, at 1117 Hodiamont avenue. He heard someone run across the roof of the garage, a one-story annex in the rear.

Saw Two Men Flee.
"I ran out into the alley and saw two men climbing off the roof," Campbell said. "They slid down a telephone pole and I yelled at them, but they did not stop. They ran to an old Ford car parked at Hodiamont and Suburban avenues and drove away. Then the building blew up."

There was but one explosion, followed by a fire, which was quickly extinguished. Plate glass windows in the stores were smashed and most of the smaller windows were shattered. Upstairs, furniture was wrecked, floors were split open and plaster torn from the walls. The contents of four occupied stores were buried in debris.

Inspecting the second floor, police concluded that a group of jugs in the center of the building had exploded and that the destroyers had expected the flames would spread to the other jugs. One gunny sack containing two jugs was suspended under a funnel which stood in a hole which had been cut through the floor so that the liquid would drip through to the beams below.

Damage to the building was estimated by police at $6000; to the contents of the rooming house, $1000; to the shoe store of Joseph Epstein, $500; to the delicatessen of Max Baumhaft, $2000; to the barber shop of William Beberer, $500; and to Plange's tire shop and garage, $800.

At the tailor shop of Anton Janus, adjoining the building at 1105 Hodiamont avenue, the damage was placed at $500; at the Mitchell Building, across the street at No. 1100, about $200, and at the Piggly Wiggly store in the next block, No. 1074, about $150. Individual losses of from $3 to $50, by broken glass, were reported by other property owners in the neighborhood.

STRONG SWIMMER DROWNED AFTER DIVING FROM BOAT

Oliver Moss, 4031 North Ninth Street, Apparently Seized With Cramps in Meramec at Fenton.

Oliver Moss, 27 years old, of 4031 North Ninth street, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he apparently was seized with cramps while swimming in the Meramec River at Fenton.

The body was recovered 30 minutes later by Deputy Sheriff James Sievin with grappling hooks and, had an inhalator been available, Sievin thinks Moss would have been revived. He showed some signs of recovery under artificial respiration applied by Dr. Hugh Hawkins, but an inhalator, sent from Webster Groves, arrived too late to be of use.

Moss, a strong swimmer, went to the river yesterday morning with Harold J. Pheler of 2523 North Thirteenth street. They rented a canoe and took turns diving from it into the river between the two bridges at Fenton.

About 2 o'clock the two men playfully capsize the canoe, to which Pheler clung while Moss struck out for shore. He suddenly sank and, on coming up, called for help.

Sylvester Deeken, 19, 6226 Scanlan avenue, who was swimming nearby, went to Moss' rescue. Deeken grasped Moss by the hair and swam part of the way to shore with him when he became exhausted and was forced to release his hold. Moss sank before other swimmers could reach him. Pheler, who is not a strong swimmer, managed to get to shore unassisted after abandoning the canoe.

Artificial respiration was applied under the direction of Dr. Hawkins for two hours. Dr. Hawkins pronounced Moss dead and the body was removed to Kirkwood, where an inquest will be held today.

Most who operated an automobile repair shop at 2512 North Thirteenth street, was married and is survived by his widow and two small children.

ell Building, across the street at No. 1100, about $200, and at the Piggly Wiggly store in the next block, No. 1074, about $150. Individual losses of from $3 to $50, by broken glass, were reported by other property owners in the neighborhood.

MAN IN DREAD OF RACKETEERS WON'T PROSECUTE

Augustus Powell's Action Compels Freeing of W. H. Tackett on $10 False Pretense Charge.

Police today released Walter H. Tackett, 25 years old, formerly of Chicago, who represented himself as an agent of "The Greater St. Louis Garage Owners' Association" and collected $10 on account from Augustus Powell, proprietor of the Whittier Garage, 318 North Whittier street, as part of Powell's application to join the "association."

Powell refused to prosecute Tackett on a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. "I won't prosecute in any circumstances," Powell said.

The arrest of Tackett came after Edward Powers, 5710 Bartmer avenue, manager of the Guild Hall Garage, in the rear of 4301 West Pine boulevard, told police that a man had "propositioned" him with respect to an association of garage men and had made veiled hints about racketeering to get and hold membership. There was some talk, he said, of racketeers imported from Chicago. Powers was alarmed for his own safety, he told police, and wished to be protected when the man returned.

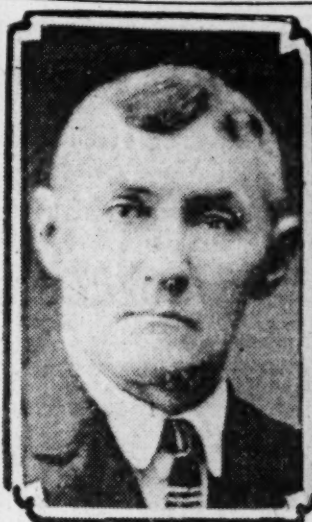

Powell's first conference with the "agent" of the "association" was on June 29. About 6:30 p. m., June 3, the man, who later said he was Walter H. Tackett, appeared at Powers' garage and was arrested. Five application contracts of the new association were found in his pocket, among them the one made out to Augustus Powell, marked to show that Powell had paid $10 down.

Powell said that Tackett had also talked to him about the association. He said hints of racketeering featured the talk. These were the basis of his refusal to prosecute.

David Stoney, manager of the Eu-Clede Garage, at 5 North Euclid avenue, and John Schueddig, president of the Garage Service Co., also of 5 North Euclid avenue, told police that Tackett had talked to them about the association. Schueddig said that Tackett told him the association was out to raise enough money to pay a cleaning plant and the home of an official were bombed, and attempts were made to bomb several other buildings.

Motion Picture Comedian Dies.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 5.—Sid Smith, 36-year-old motion picture comedian, died suddenly yesterday afternoon shortly after attending a beach party with several friends of the film colony. Doctors who attended Smith said he muttered something about "gin" he had drunk at the party.

a lawyer with offices in the Wainwright Building, about the association. Spellbrink told police that Tackett had called at his office and had inquired as to the legal cost of forming the association.

Spellbrink said he had told the agent his fee would be $1500. He said he had asked Tackett for references and had expected to investigate before he undertook the work.

The contracts found in Tackett's pockets read in part: "I or we hereby approve a plan for organizing the garage owners of the St. Louis district for the promotion of city, State or other measures for the protection of our interests and for the furtherance of a more friendly co-operation among ourselves." There are other clauses covering the total cost of applying for membership which police understand was to be $100.

One of the prospects said Tackett had told him the plan was approved by the Better Business Bureau. Tackett denied this, saying that his "association" had nothing to do with the Better Business Bureau.

A month ago it was reported racketeers were trying to gain control of the cleaning and dyeing business here by forcing wholesale cleaners to join an association to which they would pay $2000 initiation fee and a membership fee equivalent to 10 per cent of their annual receipts. Subsequently a cleaning plant and the home of an official were bombed, and attempts were made to bomb several other buildings.

6-YEAR-OLD BOY AND TWO MEN ARE KILLED BY AUTOS

Sidney Sloofman Fatally Injured While Attempting to Cross Street Near His Home.

Julius Kuenne, 35 years old, foreman for a sand and gravel company, 6200A Michigan avenue, died at Alexian Brothers Hospital this afternoon of a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident as he was returning to St. Louis from Cuba, Mo. yesterday. In addition, a 6-year-old boy and another man were killed by automobiles in St. Louis yesterday.

Kuenne went to Cuba to play baseball in a Fourth-of-July celebration game. Near St. Louis, on his way home, his automobile locked fenders with another machine and was upset. He was crushed under the car.

Sidney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sloofman, 5916A Hamilton terrace, was fatally injured when he was struck by a machine driven by William Sternberg, 4200A Suburban avenue, while attempting to cross the street near his home. Sternberg gave bond pending an inquest.

Thomas Hannagan, 45, a laborer, 491 Baden avenue, was killed outright by a City Waterworks truck at Brush and Halls Ferry roads. The truck was manned by Edward Ridgeway, 4488 Maryland avenue, and Henry Vorveg, 3926 Parnell street, who told police they did not see Hannagan step in the path of the machine.

George Chalupsky, 4235 Meramec street, suffered skull fracture when his automobile upset on a short curve in McKinley drive in Forest Park.

Mrs. Josephine Turpin, 1731 Carr street, suffered fractured ribs when she and her 3-year-old daughter were thrown from a truck driven by her husband, Sam, in a collision at Ninth street and St. Louis avenue. The child was unhurt.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER FLOOD CONTROL CLASH CONTINUES

Residents of Opposite
Banks Express Conflicting Opinions at Hearings of Board on Trip.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
NATCHEZ, Miss., July 5.—Clash of opinion between the two banks of the Mississippi continues as the flood control board nears the end of its first inspection. The board touched here yesterday on the steamer Mississippi and is to reach New Orleans for a public hearing Saturday.

What was hailed as meat to one side of the river, has been declared poison to the other at every hearing since the board left St. Louis. To shift the metaphor, this body created to reconcile the Mississippi river commission and army engineer plans, has a hazardous course to steer between the financial rocks on one side of the river and engineering whirlpools on the other as any Grecian mariner ever had between Scylla and Charybdis.

Objection Vigorous.
Objection to both plans was vigorously advanced by residents in the proposed Boeuf River floodway on the west bank Tuesday at Vicksburg. From the east bank the floodway was as vigorously defended, and preference voiced for the engineer corps' plan and the larger floodway.

Men stood in the crowded Federal Courtroom. Though most witnesses were limited to 10 minutes, the hearing lasted until evening. Tense moments occurred, but, as in earlier sessions, the atmosphere was not only clearer but quieter at adjournment. Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers and chairman of the board, remarked upon the "spirit of compromise" which became manifest at New Madrid and is growing as we go on down the river.

Both plans propose a floodway about 140 miles long from near Arkansas City in the west bank through the Boeuf River basin to Sicilyland and a natural drainage into the Red River.

Both would protect land outside the floodway by strong levees land inside the floodway is estimated 60 per cent swamp and timber, but it is estimated also that 40,000 persons live in it.

Levees Would Give Way.
"Fuse plugs levees" in the army plan would give way at Cypress Creek when the flood reached 60.5 feet at Arkansas City. Water would begin pouring over a concrete spillway at 54.4 feet by the commission plan, which suggested that spillway at 54.4 feet by the commission plan, which suggested that for an additional cost of $300,000, central gates could be built on top of the spillway. The corps contemplated a diversion of 800,000 second feet, which would cover 1,440,000 acres in the floodway.

The Commission figured on 600,000 second feet covering less than 1,000,000 acres. Gen. Jadwin pointed out that the smaller diversion would require four feet additional height on main river levees for about 400 miles and heighten the back water while the session was going on, was on the Arkansas, White and Yazoo rivers as well as the St. Francis back water flooding along the Yazoo River to Rolling Fork.

Congressman Collier of Vicksburg and a number of witnesses urged immediate survey of the Yazoo and completion of the 20-mile levee along the Yazoo from Vicksburg to New Brunswick. Its eight-mile gap, the Congressman declared, caused recurrent flooding of hundreds of square miles.

Problem of Tributaries.
"One of the most difficult problems we will have is the handling of tributaries which also are in the back water area," remarked Gen. Jadwin. "We have got to care for the surplus water somehow. These back water areas have potential value providing we can rescue them, but in so doing we cannot jeopardize greater value, more stock, more land, more crops, more lives in the places you, through your representatives at Washington, are asking us to protect."

Gen. Jadwin pointed out that a break of the "fuse plug" could be foreseen days in advance, and would occur as an "act of God," whereas if the commissions suggestion of central gates were adopted, they would have to be opened "as an act of this department."

"Are we to determine arbitrarily when to open the spillway, or are we to call a public hearing?" he quizzed. "I don't see why you want to wish a tri-state scrap on us."

"In my district the Mississippi River Commission plan protects 50 per cent of all the land which the engineers plan condemn," declared W. G. Street of Camden, Ark.

EIGHT DEATHS SINCE TUESDAY LAID TO HEAT

Coroner Investigating Cases of Several Persons Found Dead; Man, 75, Prostrated.

Two more deaths, apparently due to the heat, occurred today, bringing the total of such deaths to eight since Tuesday. All are being investigated by the Coroner.

Thomas Huffer, 74 years old, a laborer, of 2614 South Ninth street, died at City Hospital this afternoon. He fainted in a grocery at 901 Victor street after complaining of the heat.

Steve Duncan, 25, a Negro, of 3305 Laclede avenue, died this morning at People's Hospital. He collapsed Tuesday at the DeKalb street shops of the American Car & Foundry Co., where he was employed as a laborer.

Alexander Smith, 64 years old, a chef employed at Mission Inn, Grand boulevard and Magnolia avenue, collapsed while working in the kitchen there at 9:30 o'clock last night and died on the way to a hospital.

Elmer Wilson, 67 years old, died at his home, 904 Walton avenue, last night. He complained of the heat early in the afternoon, but refused to have medical attention.

Elmer H. Heineman, 35 years old, a salesman for the Remington-Rand Business Service, Inc., was found dead in a room at Marquette Hotel yesterday afternoon. He was last seen alive before retiring Monday night. Heineman, who came to St. Louis from Spokane, Wash., last May, was not related to Eugene H. Heineman, sales manager for the Remington-Rand Co. here.

The body of a woman, who died Tuesday afternoon after becoming exhausted from heat while soliciting for a charity, was identified as that of Mrs. Elizabeth Weir, 61.

Thomas Hannegan, 65, 491 Rad- an avenue, whose body was found beside the Waterworks street car tracks near Thrush avenue yesterday morning, is supposed to have suffered a heat stroke.

The body of an unidentified man, about 70, was found near the Terminal railroad tracks at East Prairie avenue. Indications were that heat caused death.

Patrick Connelly, 75, 1017 North Broadway, is in a serious condition at City Hospital from heat prostration.

$4,244,000 IN SCHOOL FUND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—The State apportionment of school funds to the public schools of Missouri will total $4,244,047 this year, State Auditor L. D. Thompson announced today. This is an increase of $624,168 over the $3,619,879 apportioned to the schools last year. The apportionment will be made Sept. 1.

This fund represents one-third of the general revenue receipts of the State, set aside by law for distribution to the public school districts. The funds are distributed to the counties by the State, on the basis of the number of pupils in the schools, days attendance the previous school year, and number of teachers. The counties distribute the funds to the public school districts on the same basis. The increase in the amount available this year is due to increases in collections of the State income tax and State inheritance tax which constitute two of the principal tax items in the general revenue fund.

CANDIDATE DEAD

ARTHUR L. OLIVER.CAUSE OF A. L. OLIVER'S DEATH UNDETERMINED

Chemical Analysis of Viscera of Former U. S. Attorney Being Made.

A chemical analysis to determine the cause of his death is being made of the viscera of Arthur L. Oliver, former United States Attorney here and candidate for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge, who was found dead Tuesday after entering his apartment at 1245 Shawmut place while it was being fumigated.

In preparation for an inquest set for today, a coroner's physician performed an autopsy. He reported he was unable to determine whether death was caused by fumigating gas. The chemical analysis will require two or three days to complete, it was said at the Gradowohl Biological Laboratories, 3514 Lucas avenue, where it is being made.

The body was taken to a hamlet near Cape Girardeau, Mo., for funeral services this afternoon at the Pleasant Hill Presbyterian Church. Oliver was reared in the vicinity and his body will be buried in the cemetery of his family. The inquest was postponed until 2 p. m. Saturday for the report on the chemical analysis.

Fumigator Gave Warning. William E. Martin, in charge of the fumigation, said he found Oliver in the kitchen of the apartment. The attorney, Martin said, apparently had entered through a rear screen door, although the door had been nailed. When the fumigation started Tuesday morning, Martin warned Mrs. Oliver in the hearing of Mr. Oliver that the hydrocyanic gas used to kill the insects was deadly, the fumigator testified.

Mrs. Oliver left the apartment about 10 a. m. to stay with friends and the attorney departed with the expressed intention of going to his office in the Boatmen's Bank Building. He did not go there, however.

Former Partner of Farris. Mr. Oliver was a successful lawyer in Southeast Missouri before he was appointed United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri by President Wilson. At Caruthersville he was a law partner of Charles B. Farris, now United States Judge for the Eastern District of Missouri. He also served several terms as State Senator from the Caruthersville district.

After his term as United States Attorney, he returned to the private practice of law. He was 45 years old. Surviving, besides the widow, are two sons, John and James, and a brother, A. Sloan Oliver, St. Louis.

Negro Boys Held for Robbery. Three Negro boys are held by police for the theft of nine bottles of whiskey and $4.14 from the drug store of Morris Gould, 1400 Bell avenue. They admitted, police said, gaining entrance to the store early yesterday by crawling through a rear chute.

WOMAN OF OX-CART ERA DIES HERE AT 106

Mrs. Julia Wortman, Born When Monroe Was President, Lived on Farm 70 Years.

Dating back to the era of homestead clothes, ox-carts and muzzle-loading rifles, Mrs. Julia Wortman, 106 years old, whose father was a pioneer in Indiana, died Tuesday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Hubbard, 4022 Cleveland avenue.

Death was due to a heart-stroke and occurred while she slept. Though weak owing to the infirmities of age during the past three years, she had suffered no serious illness. At the celebration of her 100th birthday, in 1922, she cut the cake and helped serve the ice cream to guests.

Mrs. Wortman was born in Madison, Ind., in 1822, when James Monroe was President, and when the Middle West was mainly a wilderness. She learned at an early age to bake, sew, spin, salt hides, and drive an ox-team. She married a farmer, and with her husband moved to Gallatin County, Illinois. For the better part of 70 years she fulfilled her quota of chores as a farmer's wife, even in her '90's insisting on being alone in her own kitchen.

Twenty Great-Grandchildren. She had six children, of whom four survive; 26 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. She not only brought up her own children, but acted the role of parent to seven younger brothers and sisters because their mother died when she was in her teens.

Mrs. Wortman did not believe in taking medicines. Her own robust health made her independent of doctors, save when, at an advanced age, she fell and broke her arm. She ate heartily up to the time of her death, was particularly fond of meats, and consumed much coffee.

Five Years in St. Louis. Mrs. Wortman lived for years on a farm near Newton, Ill. Later the Wortman family moved to another farm near Shawneetown. Up to five years ago, Mrs. Wortman in Gallatin County. Growing infirmities caused her to move to St. Louis to her daughter's home.

Her surviving children are Mrs. Lynn Wynne of Madison, Ind.; Ephrum Wortman of Farmersburg, Ind.; Sam Wortman of Newton, Ill.; and Mrs. Hubbard. Funeral services will be at Shawneetown tomorrow afternoon from the home of Pearl Hubbard, a grand-daughter.

Mrs. Wortman's brothers and sisters all lived into the nineties and her father also passed the century mark.

GIANT FIRECRACKER SET OFF IN MOUTH OF SLEEPING MAN

By the Associated Press.
CAMDEN, N. J., July 5.—William Ingram, 40 years old, of this city, was in a hospital today with his teeth blasted away.

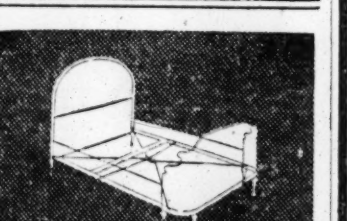

While he sat asleep on the porch of his home, presumably with his mouth apace, a practical joker thrust a large firecracker between his teeth, lighted the fuse and fled. The explosion knocked out all of his teeth. His cries brought neighbors, who took him to a hospital. His condition is serious.

SCANT TURNOUT FOR DAWES

EVANSTON, Ill., July 5.—There wasn't much of a crowd at Evanston's civic celebration of Independence day as Evanston's leading citizen, Vice President Charles G. Dawes, did not make his scheduled address. Neither did Mayor Bartlett.

The Vice President and the Mayor headed an automobile parade to Belmont Park, where a reviewing stand had been erected for the day's speechmaking. Only about 200 persons, however, followed. It was then announced that the program would proceed without speeches. Dawes and Bartlett went home.

Inquest Into Death After Fall.
An inquest will be held today into the death of George Motz, 23 years old, 3432 Bell avenue, who died at city hospital yesterday a few hours after being admitted there. He said he had fallen down stairs at his home Monday.

GERMAN FLYERS ATTEMPTING TO SET ENDURANCE RECORD

Two Take Off at 4:04 A. M. Today to Break Mark Established by Italian Aviators.
DESSAU, Germany, July 3.—Pilots Johann Rietz and Hans Zimmermann took off at 4:04 a. m. today in another attempt to break the duration flight record of 78 hours, 34 minutes and 26 1-5 seconds held by the Italians, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Maj. Carlo P. Delprete.
They were forced to give up an attempt on July 2 after being in the air 17 1/2 hours because of a defect in their exhaust pipe.

GANG WRECKER DEAD

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
HORACE L. DYER.

HORACE L. DYER TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Services for Man Who Prosecuted Egan Gangsters Will Be Under Masonic Auspices.

Funeral services for Horace L.
Dyer, who prosecuted the Egan gang and was widely known as a Michigan University football star in the '90's, will be held at 3 p. m.
tomorrow under Masonic auspices at an undertaking establishment at 3564 Lindell boulevard. Interment will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Dyer, who was 56 years old, died Tuesday at St. Luke's Hospital of heart disease, less than 24 hours after he had become ill at his home at 5666 Cabanne avenue.
The son of the late David P.
Dyer, United States District Judge in St. Louis, Mr. Dyer was a native of Louisiana, Mo. He was educated at Smith Academy and Michigan University and prior to his graduation from the university, in 1895, was a noted quarterback.

After four years in the practice of law in St. Louis he became assistant City Attorney, holding the place until 1902, when he became Assistant United States District Attorney, a position he held for five years.

Sent Gangsters to Prison.
It was in 1923 that he became a prosecutor again. At that time he was appointed an Assistant Attorney-General of the United States to prosecute the leaders of the Egan gang, who were shortly afterwards indicted for mail robberies in St. Louis and Staunton, Ill.

Mr. Dyer was successful in both prosecutions, which resulted in 25-year sentences being assessed against the gangsters in the Staunton robbery and 15-year sentences in the St. Louis holdup. Among the men sent to the penitentiary were "Dinty" Colbeck, "Chippy" Roblin-son, "Red" Smith, Oliver Doughterty, Stephen Ryan, "Featheredge" Schneider, Roy Tipton, "Red" Lanham, and Leo Cronin.

After the sentences had been affirmed by the Appellate Court, Mr.
Dyer told how his father, the Federal Judge, on his deathbed in April 1924, had adjured him to pursue relentlessly the prosecution of the mail robbery cases. The aged Judge did not live to see the successful termination of the trials.
Later, Mr. Dyer obtained a release for his former client, Ray Renard, an Egan gangster whose testimony made possible the successful prosecution of the mail robbery cases. Convicted of theft from an interstate shipment, Renard has never openly reappeared in St.
Louis after leaving the penitentiary.

Aided Federal Prosecutions.
After the termination of the mail robbery cases, Mr. Dyer continued as an Assistant Attorney General to work with the Postoffice Inspector in prosecuting offenders against the postal service. In one case he prosecuted two lawyers accused of being implicated in the Rondout, Ill., mail robbery, but the jury disagreed.

Another important case in which he directed the prosecution was that of William K. Hale, a rancher of Fairfax, Ok., known as "King of the Osage Hills" who was sentenced to life imprisonment after he had been convicted of murdering an Indian to get $25,000 life insurance. Subsequently the conviction was reversed by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Dyer was married in 1899 to Miss Betty Edgar who died two years later. His second wife, Miss Betty Wilcox of Chicago, also died and in March, 1927, he was married to Mrs. Margaret Klein, widow of Dr. Sebastian Klein. He is survived by his widow and his 11-year-old son, Jack.

DUBLIN, July 3.—A state welcome was given the Bremen trans-Atlantic flyers, Maj. James Fitz-maurice, Capt. Herman Koehl and Baron von Huenfeld yesterday.
They were received by President Cosgrave and other Ministers of the Government buildings and later by Governor-General James McNeill at Vice-Regal Lodge. The flyers also attended United States Minister Frederick A. Sterling's

INSECT SEASON NOW HERE

Health Authorities Recommend Use of Fly-Tox for Security

Science has proved conclusively that the fly is one of mankind's worst enemies. As a carrier of disease it has no equal. They transmit more than thirty different diseases, say eminent authorities. FLY-TOX not only kills insects easily and quickly, but it has other desirable features as well. It will not stain. FLY-TOX is harmless to mankind and animals. It leaves a pleasing odor that is clean and fragrant.

This marvelous insecticide was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. It is a scientific product made to meet today's requirements in a household insecticide. It is a clear, clean and pure liquid put up in bottles with the blue label. Many imitations are seeking to take advantage of popularity gained by FLY-TOX. Do not be misled. Demand the genuine FLY-TOX.

HOOVER TO MEET G. O. P. EASTERN LEADERS

Plans for Campaign Organization to Be Discussed at Conference Saturday.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 5.—Clearing the way for an early departure from the capital, Secretary Hoover plans to confer on Saturday with leading Eastern Republicans to establish a campaign organization in that section. All members of the Republican National Committee from the Northeastern states and from Pennsylvania and Maryland have been called to Washington for the meeting. Senator Moses of New Hampshire also is present. Moses, who was permanent chairman of the national convention, is expected to be named Eastern campaign manager. With the Eastern situation settled, Hoover will leave for the West. In this connection an announcement repeated emphatically that his program had been definitely arranged, and that he will deliver his resignation from the cabinet to President Coolidge at the summer White House. Rumors as to his plans beyond this outline were pronounced unjustified. A report that Hoover had offered the vice presidential nomination to Senator Norris of Nebraska, while the convention was in progress was denied. A semi-official Commerce Department statement called the story as "preposterous and silly" and reiterated that Hoover had taken no part in the choice of a vice presidential nominee.

Today's bargains in used articles in today's Want pages.

was shot in the left side Tuesday night when he failed to heed a command by policemen that he halt. Probationary Patrolman Ellsterman, reported that he observed Kilcullen in a hallway near the Madison street address and called to him to halt. Instead the youth ran through an alley, followed by Ellsterman, who fired four shots at the fugitive. Kilcullen, who stopped after being struck by a bullet, was treated at city hospital.

SEAPLANE SERVICE BETWEEN GREAT LAKE CITIES IN 1929

Navigation Company Closes Contracts for All-Metal Flying Boats Carrying 25 Passengers.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Mich., July 5.—Negotiations for seaplane service between Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo have been completed between the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Co. and the manufacturers of Dornier all-metal flying boats, which will be put into service about July 1, 1929. It was announced by A. A. Schantz, president of the navigation company.

The type of flying boat is equipped to carry 25 passengers and a crew of four men. At present the company plans one boat to make a daily round trip from Detroit to Buffalo, stopping on each trip at Cleveland, while another boat will make the reverse trip to Detroit from Buffalo and return.

Time from Detroit to Cleveland will be slightly less than an hour and the trip to Buffalo from Cleveland will require an hour and three-quarters.

TRANSATLANTIC PLANE BREMEN STRIPPED OF ACCESSORIES

Persons Living Near Long Point, Labrador, Said to Have Removed All Detachable Parts.

By the Associated Press. ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 5.—The Junkers monoplane Bremen, in which Maj. James Fitzmaurice, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld flew across the Atlantic ocean, has been stripped of persons in the vicinity where the plane landed, according to reports received here today. The Bremen lies in a dilapidated condition midway between Long Point and Blanc Sablon in Labrador. It has been unguarded ever since Fred Melchior, Junkers mechanic, abandoned his attempt to bring the plane to New York.

According to dispatches from Forteau, Bell Isle Strait, the natives have left little of value on the plane.

Tilden a

AMERICAN DOUBLE DEFEATED AFT FIRST TWO

WIMBLEDON, July 5.—Gerald Australia, defeated William T. Tilden in the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

The defeat of Tilden and Hunter, world's champion doubles players, furnished an upset of advance calculations and marked the rapid progress of the Australians who eliminated the star French players, Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste Tuesday.

Tilden and Hunter were off in front when they won the first two sets but Patterson and Hawks took the next three, although the Americans were within a game of the deciding set when they led 6-4.

Match Is Spectacular.
The thrilling three-hour, five-set fight was anybody's victory until the last two points. It was a spectacular and nerve racking as the Tilden-Lacoste duel of yesterday.

Tilden was superb until the loss of his service at the close when the score had mounted steadily from deuce to 4-1.

Patterson, hitting his famed ferocious strokes was the man to clinch victory for the British Empire and as he stepped to the base line officials belatedly through loud speakers for the crowds to be silent. The silence lasted but a few moments for Patterson with the steady, stylish hawks at his side crashed to victory with the loss of a single point. The stands then roared with joy.

Francis T. Hunter and Miss Helen Wills remained in the mixed doubles competition by defeating Scroggie and Mrs. Shepherd Barron, 4-1, 6-2.

The last of the American men's doubles teams passed out of the competition when Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugna, French pair, defeated John Hennessey and George Lott, 11-9, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California girl, and Mrs. Joan Austin Lyett defeated Miss L. Hickerton and Mrs. Pat O'Hara Wood in the women's doubles, 7-5, 6-2.

Daphne Akhurst and Elena Boyd, youthful Australians, put out K. Bowman of Holland and Miss Evelyn Colyer, 6-4, 6-3.

The fortunes of the game in the first set of the men's doubles seemed awed, going to 3-4, 4-4 and 5-5 before the Americans ran it out. Patterson scored two service aces in the tenth game. Patterson's fierce driving featured the play of the set. Tilden took the last two points by maneuvering Hawks out of position and then driving to his corner.

The second set continued the even play. The Americans led at 3-2, when Patterson drew even with a service ace. Hunter then won his service but the Australians won a volleying duel to again even matters at 4-4.

Hawks' twisting service seemed to worry the Americans in the third set and the tenth game went to the Australians despite Hunter's heroic effort to save the last point with a rush to the lineachers to return a high-bouncing smash.

The Australians were out in front, 2-1, in the fourth set when Patterson served three aces and never headed. Hawks at that time was playing the soundest backhand on the court.

Tilden serving and the Americans into the lead in the final set. Patterson won the next game and Hunter and Hawks followed suit. The Australians broke through Tilden's service to lead, 3-2. Tilden then with two aces in succession on cross-court slices. The Americans, however, came back to break through Patterson's service with spectacular smashes. The Americans advanced to a lead of 4-4. The four men were now trading intensely as the final set reached its critical stage.

Big Bill Is Eliminated.
By the margin that youth usually holds in sports, Hope Lacoste of France checked the somewhat of the veteran American ace, Big Bill Tilden yesterday in one of the greatest tennis battles waged in

LOCAL SOCCER REFEREES WILL JOIN U. S. BODY

St. Louis soccer referees will be organized into a district group working under the United States Soccer Referees' Association, it was announced today by Edward J. Gilgane, president of the national body.

Gilgane spent two days talking over the project with local officials and the announcement followed an understanding with the St. Louis whistle blowers.

Although the Referees' Association has been functioning for 14 years, this is the first year in which the United States Football Association granted it official recognition. This occurred at the recent annual meeting of the U. S. F. A. at Milwaukee.

According to the new rule in the U. S. F. A. code, all officials at U. S. F. A. contests must be members of the national referees' association.

The referees' organization has brought about many improvements in the referee's lot, and in improving the standard of officials.

Referees are required to pass both oral and written examinations on the rules and points of the game as well as on the way in which games should be handled. They must also pass field tests under scrutiny of official watchers and in addition must meet personality requirements. An average of 70 is required.

President Gilgane, since assuming the presidency two years ago, has succeeded in obtaining redress for referees in civil suits and in one instance in Philadelphia, James Walder, a referee, was assaulted and beaten by a spectator.

The referees' association caused the prosecution of the offender and had him fined $50 and threatened with a jail sentence upon a repetition. In addition a civil suit resulted in a $1000 damages award.

In Detroit, Referee Evans was assaulted and beaten by a spectator and awarded damages and was prosecuted for assault with a knife.

"We hope to clean up the game from roughness and to raise the standard of officiating both as to personnel and efficiency," Gilgane told a Post-Dispatch reporter.

CARDINALS ENJOY TWO OPEN DATES BEFORE OPENING WITH BRAVES

LEADERS WON FOUR LOST FOUR HOME STAND

By Herman Wecke.

Days of idleness face Bill Carson's Cardinals before the season's battle to retain place in the National League. The Cardinals have been idle since the first of June, when they were defeated by the Boston Braves, the first of the Cardinals' home games. The team has been idle for a total of 14 days, the longest in the history of the club. The Cardinals have been idle for a total of 14 days, the longest in the history of the club. The Cardinals have been idle for a total of 14 days, the longest in the history of the club.

You Never Can Tell.

JIM JEFFRIES, who is being paid by a vaudeville circuit to tell the world what he knows about fights and fighters, credits Tom Heenev with a chance to beat Tunney.

That Tom has a dim hope goes without saying. Tunney might break a hand, sprain an ankle or have an eye put out in the conflict. Other than a mishap of some kind, it does not appear possible for Jeffries to figure how Heenev can win.

Jeffries says Heenev is tough and can take a lot of punishment. He will have to, beyond any doubt, for Tunney knows how to hand it out and without taking much himself.

As said before, if Tunney is himself, Heenev is built to order for Gene's style of fighting. Nor is Tom sufficiently versatile to change his style and force Tunney to do likewise.

A foreview of the fight, based on the past of both boxers, would show Heenev boring in, impaling himself on Tunney's spearhead left, and then being rocked back on the Heenev heels by Gene's crashing right.

And It Hurts!

TUNNEY'S one-two punch is a real pretty bit of mechanism, when it is working right. Ask Jack Dempsey. He felt it within 30 seconds after the start of the fight at Philadelphia; and also it had him on the floor in the eighth round of their second bout at Chicago.

Jeffries may be right; odds-on favorites are beaten frequently in sport. Tunney himself won at long odds. But on their records there is nothing to give Heenev a lookin, because he hasn't a spark anywhere about him.

A dogged, grim, plugging attack against an intelligent, enlightened counter-attack: That seems to epitomize the coming fight.

About the Old Timers.

JEFFRIES comments that Tunney, Heenev and Dempsey were not much as fighters, and that any one of half a dozen old-timers—including himself presumably—could have pushed over all three of them.

"Fitzsimmons could have taken them on one after the other and whipped them," he adds.

Jeffries probably does not take into consideration that the Dempsey of today is not the Dempsey of yesterday. Jeffries' bulk and punch, Fitzsimmons' shift and wallop and Jack Johnson's craft might have proved problems for Dempsey, even when Jack was at his best.

Holm hit to Grimm and was safe when Malone dropped the throw. Reinhart tried to score from second, but was out and the rally ended. It appeared that it would have been wise baseball to hold Reinhart on third. Malone was clearly up in the air and Frank Frisch, a dangerous man in the pinch, was coming next. That, however, is only the second guess and the men playing the game have only one.

FRED WINNAI CAPTURES 100-MILE AUTO RACE

By the Associated Press.

AMATOL, N. J., July 5.—Fred Winnai, Philadelphia speed king, yesterday won the 100-mile automobile race, the main event of the Atlantic City Speedway's Fourth of July program. His time was 59 minutes 38 2-5 seconds, a trifling more than 100 miles an hour.

Western Stars Lead in Trials for Mat Squad

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 5.—Western wrestlers set the pace in the preliminary trials here yesterday to determine the makeup of the United States Olympic squad.

In the 123 1/2-pound division four Oklahomans, one representative from Kansas and one from Iowa won their first-round matches, four of them by falls.

One of the upsets was provided by Bobbie Pierce, 17, of Cushing, Ok., who eliminated Louis Thompson of Virginia Military Institute, an outstanding favorite in the class. Pierce was on the defensive during the first two minutes of the match but found himself and pinned Thompson in 6m. 14s. Richard Cole of Ames, Ia., competing unattached, won the decision from Milton Krook of the Harvard A. C., Cambridge, Mass. H. S. Hovies of the New York A. C. put up a bitter struggle in his match with Cecil Paxton of Kansas University but lost the decision after two over-time periods were required.

SCHALK QUIT; BLACKBURNE IS SOX NEW LEADER

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 5.—As the Chicago White Sox sped eastward today, Russell "Lena" Blackburne, Sox coach since 1926, stepped into his new post as manager of the club, succeeding the veteran Raymon H. "Cracker" Schalk, whose resignation was the surprise of Comiskey Park.

Schalk's resignation was effective immediately after the holiday double-header. He remained at home today as his teammates for the last 16 years headed into their second Eastern trip.

Immediately after receiving Schalk's letter of resignation, President Charles A. Comiskey announced the appointment of Blackburne as the "Cracker's" successor. Schalk, recognized as one of the greatest ball players who ever wore the mask, said in his letter of resignation that he was "stepping out as manager in the hopes it will be helpful to the club."

Started with Sox in 1912. "The team has been going bad, the results have not been satisfactory, so I step out," was the way he put it.

In his letter to Comiskey the "Cracker" said his "connection with baseball remains in the balance," but he hoped he would not lose his identity with the game "for some years to come." Schalk remains on the club roster as property of the Sox, but what may be the next step in the plans of either "Cracker" or Comiskey was not made known.

SMITH PRAISES TAMMANY SOCIETY AS PATRIOTIC BODY

It Cares Not for a Man's Wealth or Religion So Long as He Is a Lover of America, Governor Says.

EXECUTIVE MAKES TWO ADDRESSES

Speaks Before New Voters in New York on Citizenship and Criticizes Congress.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Gov. Smith went back to the State capitol at Albany today after two Independence Day addresses in which he told what he thought of the constitution, citizenship and Tammany, and censured Congress.

In each of these addresses he made passing allusion to his recent nomination but on the whole he seemed clear of politics.

He said at the Independence Day address at Tammany Hall that he had heard a great deal of caustic criticism of Tammany but expressed the opinion that nothing that was not all right could have continued its existence in this country as the Society of Tammany has done for years.

Tammany, he said, cared not whether a man was rich or poor or what his religious beliefs might be so long as he was a lover of America.

In his second address, delivered from the steps of the City Hall to several thousand persons, he likened the Declaration of Independence to a political platform and said the whole thought of it was contained in the one sentence that reads that all men are created equal, that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are their inalienable rights, and that to secure these rights governments are formed which secure their powers from the people.

Criticizes Congress.

Of the constitution he said that no matter how much we may quarrel among ourselves politically—"The Senate and House of Representatives can talk themselves to death, and sometimes it looks to the American public," as though they were attempting it—"nobody can interfere, as long as it remains, with the privileges its enactment guaranteed."

Allusion to his nomination was made at the opening of the two addresses and in each instance were called forth by remarks of the persons introducing him.

At Tammany Hall, John R. Voorhees, the 89-year-old sachem of the society, recalled that at a similar meeting three years before the chairman had predicted Smith's nomination in 1928, and that the Governor had replied "I accept the nomination."

"I have a distinct recollection of the incident," the Governor responded. "In the past five years I have been nominated at least three times in Tammany Hall. I was nominated at at least 200 dinners. I have been nominated at weddings, christenings, laying of cornerstone, breaking of ground for new buildings, openings or dedication of new State buildings, but in Texas."

Thunders applause cut the sentence off at mention of the Democratic convention which nominated the Governor. In the evening at city hall the chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Citizenship also mentioned the nomination in introducing the Governor.

"The chairman's introduction," the Governor responded, "sounds more like a ratification of the Houston convention than a meeting of first voters. This is the second time today this has happened to me."

"I have listened," he said in his speech at Tammany Hall, "to a great deal of public and very caustic criticism of Tammany and I asked myself the question, 'Can anything live in this country 139 years that is not all right?'"

The Governor spoke of a newspaper announcement in yesterday's edition in Tammany Hall in which were the words, "all citizens of the United States and lovers of America are invited to unite with us."

The Measure of a Man.

"That," he said, "is in the strictest possible conformity with the principle of the declaration of independence that we care nothing about the quality of man. We do care whether he is rich or poor, whether he walks up to Tammany Hall or whether he comes up to it in an automobile, or as to the old days, a coach and four."

"We care not what his station in life may be, we care nothing about his religious beliefs. We only want to know one thing and that is, that he is a lover of America."

TAMMANY QUILTS FOURTEENTH STREET FOR PARK AVENUE

Old Wigwam, Occupied for 60 Years, Vacated for Roomier Quarters.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Tammany Society today abandoned the famous wigwam on Fourteenth street, which it has occupied for 60 years, and moved to temporary quarters at No. 5 Park avenue. Records and trophies were transferred from the old building, which is soon to be demolished.

The old wigwam was the headquarters of Boss Tweed in the days when he was at the height of his power. (The first National Democratic Convention held in this city was housed in its assembly hall.) The society numbers in its ranks the Mayor, a United States Senator and a presidential nominee, Gov. Smith. A more spacious home is under construction in the Union Square district.

GANDHI REPORTED TO LEAD FRESH REVOLT IN INDIA

Agitator Said to Be Defying Government and Terrorizing
80,000 Villagers.

LONDON, July 5.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Bombay today says the Nationalist agitator Gandhi is trying to establish a revolutionary regime in the Gjerat agricultural region in the northern part of the Bombay presidency. His organization is defying the Government and terrorizing 80,000 villagers in the Bardoli district. Seventy-nine of the 88 village headmen resigned at the dictation of Gandhi and his associate Vallabhabhai Patel, whose brother is a member of the Indian legislative assembly.

The campaign ostensibly is in resistance to payment of the recently imposed land tax. The agitator urges the peasants to gather the crops on lands which the Government has forfeited in default of payments.

A great demonstration of sympathy with the revolt was held in Bombay yesterday.

CZECH MONUMENT TO WILSON

Bronze Statue Unveiled at Prague in Impressive Service.

By the Associated Press.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 5.—Czechoslovakia made July 4—which is also the tenth anniversary of the independence of the country—the occasion for the dedication of a monument to a man to whom she holds herself debtor, Woodrow Wilson.

The monument is a lifelike figure of the American war President in bronze on a massive Czech marble pedestal. The figure stands with arms outstretched in a heroic gesture, and beneath it is the inscription, "Woodrow Wilson, 1918-1928." It is the work of the Czech sculptor, Albin Palashek, and is the gift to Prague from citizens in the United States. An impressive service attended the unveiling. The Cabinet, presidents of both houses of Parliament, church dignitaries and personnel of the American legation were present.

Marines in Rodeo at Shanghai.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 5.—Americans in Shanghai enjoyed an unusually enthusiastic July Fourth celebration today. The American Marine defense force gave a Wild West rodeo, the first ever witnessed in the Orient.

and in sympathy with the aims and purposes of the society to perpetuate the memory of Jefferson, the memory of Washington, the signing of the immortal document that gave America her freedom, and the Constitution that gives life and vitality to the declaration.

"That is all we want to know, and in that simple announcement I firmly believe from the bottom of my heart is a large part of the underlying success that could keep the Tammany Society alive for 139 years. It is its great human appeal to everybody. In every walk of life and in every station of life, who is true to America and true to the ideals upon which she was founded."

He told the new voters, both native and foreign born, that citizenship carries with it responsibility "on the undisputed theory that you get nothing in this world for nothing" and expressed the opinion that one of the principal responsibilities was the exercise of the franchise.

Saying that it was surprising to know how many people were so indifferent to their citizenship that they would not take the trouble to vote, he criticized the man who "goes off on a picnic on election day, using it as a sort of week-end for entertainment."

The Governor will stay in Albany until next Tuesday, when he will attend the annual outing of the Boy Scouts at Bear Mountain and continue on to New York. The following day he will attend the first meeting of the Democratic National Committee which is running mate, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, will also attend, at which a chairman is to be selected and the plans of the campaign decided on.

MISSING SOVIET AVIATOR RETURNS

During Search for Remaining 10 of Dirigible's Complement.

By the Associated Press.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, July 5.—Fifty miles of pack ice today separated the five marooned members of the Italia crew and Lieut. Lundborg, Swedish flyer, from the Russian ice-breaker Krasnaya attempting to rescue them. The huge masses of ice halted the Krasnaya in its advance, but in the meantime the castaways were drifting nearer the vessel.

Fog and adverse weather continued to hamper efforts to take the six men off the ice by airplane. A new effort to pick them up with a light motor plane will be made from Esmarck Island, nine miles from their reported position. The tri-motored Swedish plane Upland will fly to the island to establish a base for the operation.

One flyer who had been among the missing was safe today. The Soviet aviator Babushkin, who left Malign Friday, returned to the vessel after a harrowing five days' experience with wind and "cebers."

Shortly after leaving the ship he had run into head winds which finally forced him to descend to the sea 50 miles north of Hope Island. There his seaplane was in constant danger of being crushed by icebergs. Finally he managed to take off again and find the Malign.

In the meantime search for Roald Amundsen and five men missing from his expedition, which was being made by ship from Spitzbergen and Norway. An attempt to confirm rumors that fishermen had found the missing plane failed when the Italian seaplane Marina I was forced back to Tromsø by bad weather after starting for North Cape.

Bulgarian Reparations Moratorium

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 5.—The Reparations Commission has granted Bulgaria a six-month moratorium on the payment of 3,000,000 gold francs ($1,000,000) in reparations which are due in April because the Bulgarian Treasury was drained in restoring the regions recently devastated by earthquake. At the same time the commission promised to give sympathetic consideration to Bulgaria's request for a reduction in the total amount of reparations due the allied powers.

Six Men Carried Off by Bag Of Italia May Have Landed In Arctic, Gen. Nobile Says

Explorer Does Not Give Up Hope for Missing Comrades, but Advises Search, Despite Theory of Dirigible's Burning.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 5.—The dramatic story of how the North Pole dirigible Italia met its tragic fate May 25 while returning to Spitzbergen from the North Pole is disclosed in a new official report which has been received from Gen. Umberto Nobile.

This report admits of the theory that the Italia's gas bag caught fire after the stern compartment, in which nine men, including Gen. Nobile, were working, had dropped on the ice. At the same time the General said that he thought the column of dense black smoke which the survivors of his group saw rising might have been caused by the burning of fuel reservoirs which had fallen or been thrown overboard purposely.

In this case he felt the six men carried off in the bag might still be safe.

The General reported that at the moment of the catastrophe he feared some of the groups of valves might have remained open because of ice and ordered Renato Alessandrini, envelop attendant, to verify the state of the valves in the rear of the dirigible. Alessandrini hastened off but had time to go only a few yards before the occupants of the rear compartment were hurled upon the ice below.

Bag Disappears in Clouds.

"Thereafter, reflecting after the fall," Gen. Nobile continues, "I came to exclude the possibility of gas escaping from the valves and considered it much more probable that the bags were torn, several circumstances leading me to think so. That being the case, it is understandable how the dirigible, discharging in its shock with the ice more than two tons of weight in persons and material, momentarily lightened and rose up. In fact, we saw it fly a prey to the winds at an angle of 110 degrees and soon after it disappeared among the clouds."

"There is no doubt in my mind that the Italia was able to remain in the air only a short time, because, as it continued to lose gas, it must have descended. Moreover, at the moment of the shock the motorist, Lieut. Ettore Arduino, was seen to pass along the dirigible's beam. He regarded us with stupefied eyes, but was absolutely unharmed. In view of his experience, there is no doubt that he must have tried to cause a descent of the bag as rapidly as possible, knowing that the wind was taking the dirigible far from the earth."

In Air Only Brief Time.

"Based on these three considerations, I concluded that the Italia must have been able to remain in the air only about a half hour at the most and at the speed of the wind could not have been blown more than 20 or 30 kilometers."

"Several days after the disaster I learned from my comrades circumstances appearing very grave to me: 20 minutes after the drop several of them had seen on the horizon, toward the east, a high column of dense black smoke. In the discussion of that circumstance, the hypothesis prevailed that the bag in falling had caught fire. In that case there would be no hope that any of our comrades could escape death."

"I ought to admit that, given our condition which in those first days we judged absolutely desperate, the fate we supposed had befallen our mates of being killed immediately seemed much better than our own, as we feared we were destined to a slow, anguished death by hunger."

Flame Would Have Been Seen.

"I then thought over the different circumstances. If the smoke had been produced by the dirigible catching fire, the ship would certainly have been seen falling. At any rate it would have been difficult under the cloudy sky for the flame not to be noticed by anyone at such a short distance at 15 to 20 kilometers."

"Even if true that burning rubber gives a black, dense smoke, a similar smoke may arise also from the combustion of benzine, oil, etc. I then thought that the oil and fuel reservoirs had fallen or been thrown overboard to slow up the descent. In that case one could hope that the dirigible might have fallen without catching fire and that our companions might be safe."

Advices Search Over Sector.

"Following these considerations, I then thought over the different circumstances. If the smoke had been produced by the dirigible catching fire, the ship would certainly have been seen falling. At any rate it would have been difficult under the cloudy sky for the flame not to be noticed by anyone at such a short distance at 15 to 20 kilometers."

LOUVAIN LIBRARY DEDICATED, WITH 20,000 PRESENT

Leaflets With Discarded War Hate Inscription Dropped From Planes
During Ceremony.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co., Inc., New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LOUVAIN, July 5.—An Ambassador Gibson handed Mgr. Ladeuze, rector of Louvain University, the key to the restored library dedicated yesterday, an airplane circle low, dropping a shower of leaflets. Some of them fell face up and the black letters of the discarded Latin inscription were turned toward the speakers.

"Destroyed by German fury; rebuilt by American generosity."

It was the lettering for which Whitney Warren, architect of the library, fought, and for which veterans and students rioted.

Save for this incident and few whistles from the crowd as the leaflets fluttered down the Louvain library the gift of the universities, schools, libraries and individuals to Louvain University, was inaugurated in calm.

20,000 See Dedication.

Twenty thousand persons came from all parts of Belgium to see the modernized Flemish building Warren designed. All looked first to see the balustrade where the inscription was to have been. The architect designed the main facade with one letter to each panel, but the panels are now blank.

They would have been a striking conclusion to the design in the ancient Flemish style. The design begins with a carved tableau of the burning Louvain library which was destroyed by the German army, Aug. 25, 1914. Below it is an heroic figure of Belgium with one foot on the neck of the imperial German eagle.

While the crowd listened to the speeches the Duke of Brabant, heir to the Belgian throne, discussed the controversy quietly with Cardinal Van Roey and Mgr. Ladeuze, who stood out firmly against Warren's inscription. The speakers included Ambassador Gibson, Mgr. Ladeuze and Dr. Frank P. Graves, New York commissioner of education, representing the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Dr. Graves is visiting professor to Louvain University.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never believe in any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Why North St. Louis Opposed the I. T. S. Ordinance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
IN his criticism of the opposition to the I. T. S. ordinance, Hugh C. Sexton, in Sunday's Globe-Democrat, refers to it as farcical and insane. While objections were being raised to the ordinance, Mr. Sexton, as an expert, had ample opportunity to be heard and he might have saved the city, and particularly North St. Louis, from committing an act which he deems farcical.

The bill's failure was primarily caused by the fact that it perpetuated grade crossings for 50 years as against 23 years, the period in which the I. T. S. insists it has a right to transport freight along and across our city streets—although the ordinance under which it is operating specifically permits only transportation of express matter in express cars.

The second bill, while eliminating a number of grade crossings, and proving it is well to make haste slowly, still failed to eliminate one very important crossing, i. e., Cass avenue, and had other features which should be considered.

Referring to the failure of assemblies years ago to close alleys which resulted in industrial loss to St. Louis is "Main Street" stuff, especially when you consider that the present Board of Aldermen has frequently voted to vacate streets and alleys when the industrial requirements of St. Louis demanded it. Bills granting privileges as important as those contained in the I. T. S. ordinance should never be passed hurriedly; should be studied from every angle, and all possible safeguards provided.

The opposition to the bill is not directed against the I. T. S., nor does it reflect a reactionary spirit on the part of the Board of Aldermen or the citizens of North St. Louis. As to North St. Louis being dead, I am sure the gentleman gazed at the wrong corpse.

Industrially, North St. Louis is a large district embracing others, the General Motors, the Glasgow-North Market and the Northeastern District. As to the Northeastern District, whatever losses have been sustained have not been for lack of transportation facilities, there then purchased generally in the Northwestern District where larger areas were available. Right now, two large factories are being constructed between Dock and Angelotti streets, east of Ninth, and there are inquiries for sites along the Washburn and Terminal in that section.

There are three banks and trust companies in Northeastern St. Louis with footings in excess of $25,000,000, and many other banks in that dead district with bank statements that look very much alive. There are many and very much alive industries in that dead section as the gentleman may see if he chooses. It were well to drop in and get acquainted with the North St. Louis industrial community so that whatever communications the exponent of the Forty-ninth State may send out regarding this important unit of industrial St. Louis may be based on facts and not on surmises.

J. F. O. REILER.

Mr. Frank's Unusual $60,000 Bandstand.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING a radio lecture on music I was startled to hear the speaker say that Nathan Frank donated a music bandstand in Forest Park, costing $60,000 and it has only been in use four times. It made me think of the days Lafayette Park was a swarming hum of human beings. When the band played it reminded me of Velled's Prophets' night. I started in amusement. It really looked funny to see husbands pushing gowns and women with babies in arms hurrying for seats in the park. Where has this all evaporated to? Where and why?

I remember when Mayor Kiel sang 33 verses on the free bridge, and he had musical accompaniment all through the 33. Maybe Mayor Miller will give us music without the verse. I think, and I believe I am voicing the inner longings of many when I say there is nothing so idealistic as a beautiful park with a band of musicians playing the Blue Danube or a stirring Sousa march or a Victor Herbert opera selection.

What's the matter? Who's keeping music from the working man? You say, well, let them have radio. True, but I'll take my radio as an indoor amusement or winter recreation, but give me the park and musicians in summer, where I can meet my friends and enjoy the contact of fellowship.

I think Mr. Frank is a hero, and he is more saintly than I'd be if I gave $60,000 and not see it in use. Whose fault is it, maybe some musician of St. Louis musicians' local could enlighten us. Something's wrong somewhere. Come on, St. Louis boosters, let me hear your version. I want to meet the person who doesn't want music.

MRS. CLARA CLARK.

OUR EDUCATIONAL ZEALOTS.

We need not fear that our educational system will fail or will not be safeguarded from any instructions that will turn the hair of the most conservative patriot on the lists of financiers, and captains of industry, so long as the public utility trust's publicity bureau continues to exist.

The zeal of Thomas Jefferson and of all the pioneers of public education is a pale, dim light beside the flame of the publicity agents of the public utility trust. There is no field of public education nor of public enlightenment in which they are not busy maintaining the standards of education approved by the magnates of public exploitation.

These busy agents, who have undertaken the task of making sure that the public mind will be properly enlightened, and that the youth will be instructed in the way they should think, have revised and edited textbooks for use in the schools. They have supplemented the pay of college professors, to make sure that their zeal for the right kind of education will not flag. They have subsidized public speakers, to enthuse them in the great task of enlightening public opinion with regard to the beneficent activities of the public utilities' trust. No phase of education has been neglected to keep the minds of adult and youth from going astray through false doctrine with regard to the ownership and operation of public utilities.

We learn now that the public utility trusts are paying $1500 a year to Wisconsin University, which is being expended for scholarships to educate and train public utility engineers.

How can we measure the people's debt to these zealous educators who are safeguarding the minds of old and young from the slightest tinge of that destructive bolshevism which might lead them to turn from private to public ownership and to question the beneficence and benevolence of the great magnates who hold in their hands the privilege of distributing power and light and heat to the helpless people? What would we do without them? We would have to run our own public utilities, and thus deprive ourselves of the capable guardianship of men of great wealth and their philanthropic activities. What would political candidates do without the generous aid of these magnates? How could they run for office?

We presume that when the educational zeal of the public utility trust has worked out its perfect end, the properly educated men and women of the next generation will erect everlasting memorials to the able and skillful magnates who have taken possession of all our natural resources and who have not only supplied the people with power, light and heat, but in doing so have rolled up vast accumulations of wealth, out of which the people may expect to receive doles in the form of philanthropic gifts.

ADMIRABLE, ANTHON.

Dr. McBride, official spokesman of the Anti-Saloon League, thinks Gov. Smith's statement that there should be fundamental changes in the present provisions for national prohibition was a political blunder. He calculates the Democratic candidate will lose 10 votes for every one he will gain by this declaration.

Possibly Dr. McBride is right. Certain it is that Mr. Smith has shown exceptional, if not unique, candor and courage and honesty in this expression. Certain it is that if Mr. Smith's moral stature was that of the average politician he would have remained silent. So, whether it is blunder or not, from the standpoint of vote-catching politics, it is not true that such frankness, sincerity and sheer intellectual integrity are thoroughly admirable.

Of course it is true. And every man and woman with a sound appreciation of the values will acknowledge it as true.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK.

Heroism is difficult to recognize at this distance from the far in China, but every time we hear of Chiang Kai-shek the more he intrigues us.

A year ago he was Commander in Chief of the triumphant Nationalist army. When that army reached the Yangtze River it stopped to purge itself of the communists. Very little was heard in those days of Chiang Kai-shek. Finally it was announced that he had surrendered his command, married, and settled down upon his ginseng farm. Mrs. Shek, a former Wellesley student, was said to feel that since the Nationalist army was not going anywhere it had become unworthy of its leader.

There the matter rested until last spring, when the Nationalist army resumed its northward course. Chiang Kai-shek emerged from the ginseng and resumed his command. He made an alliance with Yen Hsi-shan, who for 17 years has reigned in what is called the model province of Shanxi, and Feng Yushiang, sometimes called the Christian General, who holds the barren northwest of China and joined with the late Chang Tso-lin in wresting Pekin from Wu Pei-fu. These three are the strong men of the new China. Their armies hold the celestial city, and if they can sink their personal ambitions for the good of all, the new China will emerge from the chrysalis of time to become the light of the East. Napoleon said: "When China moves she will move the world."

It is for Chiang Kai-shek, Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yushiang to say whether that time has come.

Last Monday Chiang Kai-shek went into Pekin. He had come ostensibly for the body of Sun Yat-sen. Sun Yat-sen, the George Washington of China, and father of the new republic, was temporarily buried near the Azure Temple in the outskirts of Pekin. His permanent resting place is to be a tomb at Nanking built for him by the republicans of China. It is unlikely that this is why Chiang Kai-shek is in Pekin. Perhaps, at the hour of the dog, when there are not too many to see, Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yushiang will slip into Pekin and the trio will decide that is to be done with China.

One thing is certain: they will not turn it back to the tuchus.

CONVIVIAL OLD NEPTUNE.

Natives of Half Moon Bay, Cal., were surprised the other morning to see a veritable army of kegs bobbing merrily on the incoming tide. Investigation disclosed that the kegs, of uniform 10-gallon size, contained pure grain alcohol. Here and there, perhaps, a wicked native silently resolved to taper off, though that, we must admit, is a low, mean guess, for there is nothing in the report to indicate any such reaction. Presently prohibition officers arrived to patrol the beach. That ended abruptly the retrieving activities which had already run up a score of 100 salvaged kegs. Prediction. At the next meeting of the Bay's Chamber of Commerce the motion will be made, seconded and carried with a whoop to change the name of Half Moon to Full Moon.

THE NEW FREEDOM.

Europe sees in the presidential candidates a change in the spirit of our national politics which is less apparent to us because we are too close to them.

Nevertheless, there is a growing realization in the country that neither the Republican nor the Democratic parties is what it was. Certainly Mr. Hoover has little in common with the interests that sustained Mr. Coolidge. As the New Republic pointed out in the excellent analysis of Mr. Hoover reprinted in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, his interest is not in big business but rather in the myriad of little business men with whom he has come into contact through the Department of Commerce and who have enjoyed his aid and organizing genius to simplify and solve their problems. That is an about-face for the Republican party, whose presidents since Mr. Wilson left the White House have handed the reins of government over to as many emissaries of the great corporations as could be packed into the various Federal boards and commissions. It is not, in truth, a Republican party that does this, but one so far demoralized and disheartened by the scandals of Hardingism that Mr. Hoover had only to step in and assume control.

What happened to the Democrats in turn was pointed out by the Post-Dispatch last week. For 20 years the party was disrupted by one of the greatest visionaries and political impracticables in American history. It followed him from one will-o-the-wisp to another, only to see him fall at last in impassioned defense of the beautiful myth that man is not an evolution from the anthropoids but a fallen angel. At Houston the party turned in its rainbow net and revived the political tenets of Jefferson. It is once more a useful political party instead of a wandering class in metaphysics. From years spent in the wilderness with the almanac and the impediments of primitive star-gazing, it has turned now to the teeming masses of life and occupies itself with the practical necessities of our own troubled earth.

Is it any wonder that Europe thinks a change has come over the spirit of our politics? No, indeed. Neither party could go on in the way it was going. The Republicans could not send to the White House another Coolidge. They could not affect to believe that the country could not believe with them, that it was a sound public policy to have the Government corrupt and run merely for the benefit of a few people. The Democrats, also, had to strike for firm ground than Bryanism. They could not, either, go on as a one-gallop outfit which nobody seriously believed could govern the country.

It is what Mr. Wilson termed the new freedom. He thought we were going to free ourselves from whatever restrains us and be what our good sense tells us we should be, and perhaps that is just what we are doing.

PEACE BY REFLECTION.

The war between Standard Oil and Royal Dutch Shell, which threatened to convulse Asia and rock the very pyramids of Egypt upon their foundations, has been called off.

Dutch Shell thought it could make the point that the oil Standard is getting from Russia was confiscated and therefore is not the soviet's to sell, but after considering how most all fields have been acquired it thought better of it.

Which was just what the Standard thought.

Venizelos, whom many observers considered the ablest man at the Paris peace conference, has again become Premier of Greece. His main trouble is that he gave Greece an ungrateful republic.

A HIGH ADVENTURE.

Lillian M. Gilbreth is the mother of 11 children. She is an excellent mother, an exemplary one, for she has reared her five girls and six boys in such a manner as will enable each of them to stand for himself when the time comes; in fact, each one of them can just about do that now. Besides this high accomplishment she is an internationally known industrial engineer and industrial psychologist, as was her husband, the late Frank Gilbreth.

In her recent book, "Living With Our Children," she sounds the keynote of successful motherhood. "Live with them, and not for them," she says, and she means it. And so she has done and in the doing found happiness for herself and for her family. For each of her children as they made their advent into this world became a part of the group; they were made to feel this as soon as they were old enough to realize it; each did some small part he was capable of doing, and so all felt that they belonged. Living with them, and not for them, has made of this woman's life a high adventure.

An Alabama baby, it is said, talks distinctly at the age of seven months. We wouldn't be surprised if the same were true of that other Alabama baby who, in due time, has become that illustrious State's senior representative in the United States Senate.

ST. MATTHEW OUT.

Lem Motlow, whose acquittal in St. Louis after he had wantonly murdered a Pullman conductor is one of the scandals of the Siderer regime, and who was also indicted in the Jack Daniel conspiracy but protected from extradition by the courts of Tennessee, has now risen to the eminence of a county judge down there.

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," said St. Matthew, who strikes out on Tennessee politics.

Senator Robinson once punched a man who disturbed him while he was putting, which clinches the golf vote for him.

HELP!

From the crow's-nest where we sit, it is apparent the Giants must be stopped. Some weeks ago they were observable on the horizon no bigger than a man's hand. Now they are advancing like a tornado over the prostrate bodies of Boston, Philadelphia and Brooklyn, and they are powerful and determined. By tremendous will-power and use of body English, they have boosted the Cardinals to first place. To keep them there, that is now the problem. Charley-keeper, afflict those Giants. We need help.

A robber who held up a branch of the Laclede Gas Co. on Cherokee street made off with $125.

Big thieves have little thieves.
To prey upon and frighten;
And they in turn have other thieves,
So on ad infinitum.

The Democrats and Prohibition

(A Summary of Newspaper Opinion.)

NATIONAL newspaper comment on the Democratic convention has centered on the prohibition question. With few exceptions, both Republican and Democratic newspapers have held that the Democratic party has everything to gain by being open, emphatic and sincere.

One of the most rousing exhortations to Democracy to take the field openly against Volsteadism comes from a Republican newspaper, the wet Chicago Tribune. If the party is true to its traditional doctrines, says the Tribune, it will make a vigorous campaign for state rights and personal liberty. The Tribune launches into a fierce arraignment of the evils of prohibition:

It has driven over the police power and the courts of the states; it has run down constitutional guarantees which had been regarded as sacred; it has destroyed constitutional protection for both person and property; it has brought in trial without jury, double jeopardy, two trials and two punishments for one offense, confiscation of the use of property, enforcement of the law which entails the killing of innocent people and carries with it the immunity of the killers. These are old facts. They are well known, and when they are brought to attention it is resented by supporters of the Volstead act because they think it is merely an underhand way of attacking a moral and useful law. That is not the case.

In prohibition, as in other matters which relate intimately to the domestic and individual lives of American citizens, the State is much the better and by far the safer instrument of government. In reform it may be the slower one. But even in reform slowness is not undesirable. The states conform to the diversity of population, of habit and ideas. It is a good thing the United States is not all of one piece. Its diversity in so large an area is an advantage, and not a disadvantage. The country is the better for not being standardized.

Holding to these views, the Tribune declares that in the coming campaign the Democrats will be unfaithful to their best principles of the past if they do not stand by Gov. Ritchie's resolution attacking the excessive centralization of power in the Federal authorities and Federal invasion of the right of local self-government.

Gov. Smith's statement that he had "not changed" his views on the modification issue was hailed by the press in general as a valuable contribution to party sincerity. "He could not be Al Smith and straddle or keep silence," remarked the Milwaukee Journal. "It is too late in the day for him to start pussyfooting." Prohibition is "the unresolvable issue" of the campaign, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin (Republican). The Kansas City Post holds the same view, and stated after Gov. Smith's utterance that "it will now be impossible to give a dry interpretation to a law-enforcement plan." The Louisville Courier-Journal, not an ardent Smith paper, warmly applauded his stand. Some, it said, had been offended by it.

But why? Did anybody think that Smith had changed his mind on the subject? Was it assumed anywhere that New York's Governor, cognizant of the activity and extremity of prohibitionist opposition to these views, would seek to play a very common game of politics by hedging or silence? But those who know Smith know he is not that sort of man. The Milwaukee Journal says: "Smith will not be buying a pig in a poke." It will be perfectly aware of just what it is getting. Smith favors modification, and he is not afraid to say so.

"When Alfred E. Smith uttered these three words," declared the Albany Knickerbocker Press, "he not only made himself better understood to the country generally than ever before but he wrote his own platform for the Democratic campaign." The Springfield (Mass.) Union, which is also Republican, at once observed that, "whatever the nature of the platform, nothing is more certain than that prohibition is the only issue that Gov. Smith can consistently bring into the campaign and that it will be inseparable from his candidacy." The Springfield Republican predicts that Gov. Smith "may find the temptation very strong before the summer is over to stake everything on a knock-down fight against prohibition."

Significantly, a number of dry newspapers look to Democratic courage and frankness as offering a way out of a situation which lawlessness and hypocrisy have made intolerable. This is forcibly stated by the Philadelphia Record:

Since the Republican party has been in undisputed control of the administration of the Volstead act and of the observance of the eighteenth amendment for the past seven years, during which time the country has been flooded with illicit liquor from coast to coast, and the organization created to prevent this condition has reeked with corruption, every citizen may see for himself precisely what kind of "observance and vigorous enforcement" may be expected under the Kansas City commitment. The party has declared for the status quo for prohibition on paper. While this solution of a grave and menacing problem may be satisfactory to the believers in prohibition, and certainly is satisfactory to the bootlegging trade, it may be doubted whether it will appeal to those citizens who earnestly desire an effective remedy for the insidious national disease which has developed through the application of quick nostrums to a social evil that requires thoughtful, scientific treatment.

They seek the correction of an intolerable situation, the restoration of national self-respect.

In similar terms, the Ohio State Journal speaks of Gov. Smith as desiring to find "the best means of revising the present Volsteadian policy to lessen its evils and promote temperance, respect for law and honesty and some degree of efficiency in enforcement." The Charleston News and Courier argues that dry Democrats—believers in later temperance—should all support Smith.

An interesting feature of Southern press comment of the past week has been the fierce exhortation of the Anti-Saloon League following F. Scott McBride's assertion at Indianapolis that the league would support Mr. Hoover. The Birmingham News called upon the Democratic party to throw Mr. McBride and Mr. Cherrington off the league out of the convention. "They are there," it said, "as marplot hatching schemes for Democracy's undoing; they are dishonest—while affecting to gag at the specter of a dead issue like the saloon, this man Cherrington and this man McBride swallow complacently the record of the Harding-Coolidge regime's polluting corruption; they are dyed-in-the-wool Republicans, who never lifted their voices against Frank Smith in Illinois or Gov. McCray in Indiana."

LIGHT LYRICS FOR WARM WEATHER.

When clouds descend upon us and the sun is lost to sight,
When sunshine all seems blotted out,
When day has turned to night,
No optimism I advise, no hope I preach—
I'm not discussing dull despair, I'm talking of a speech.

With candidates so warning, it's a pleasure to reflect
That all our ills will vanish if the right one we elect;
Though what we have is bad enough,
Change might prove a curse—
No matter what a mess they're in, this somehow might be worse.

The workers want a steady job, the farmer wants relief,
But how bad things could really be surpasses our belief;
Besides, our ills are vanishing, and the bad has begun
If only—thought unthinkable—the party won.

Elect our man and blessings bright will be your rightful share,
But thoughts of things that might yet be you really cannot bear;
Amid the raucous clamor, but see the sage they disburse—
No matter what a mess they're in, this somehow might be worse.

What the country really needs is a sort of event that would render speechless with amazement.

We do not suppose that it would be so easily come to fault, or polite, or agreeable like that to try to tell a Marine Nicaragua that it is a pretty small world after all.

The real reason some of these bones are still in good condition and available every four years is that they never are used much.

Statistical Note.

While admitting that Smith will carry the big industrial cities, the Republicans are making the usual predictions that the candidate will carry the country.

Hoover does not play golf, but on the other hand, Al Smith is not telling what his score is for the course.

Sometimes we wonder if a Washington D. C. jury, either collectively or individually, couldn't be induced to become a little suspicious.

Tex Rickard expects a big sale for his Tunney-Henney affair, and probably he will get it.

FABLE.

Once upon a time the election of one to office was not "a great triumph" or "a victory" for some one else who had nothing to do with the matter.

Vacationing in Canada no longer is considered a joke, so perhaps it is not.

President-elect Obregon of Mexico was unopposed at the election, as the opposition was buried some time ago.

A Notable Achievement

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF FRANCOIS VILLON. Translated with an Introduction and Notes by J. U. Nicholson. 2 vols. (Cov. cloth, $10.00; paper, $5.00.)

FROM any viewpoint this two-volume edition of Villon's complete works is a very notable achievement, and collectors who buy with a view to enhancement of physical valuation should not overlook it, even at the fairly stiff price that is asked. The first edition, numbered and signed by the author, is limited to 500 copies, and the typography is by that master printer, "Douglas C. McMurter," whose "Golden Book" issued during the past winter, delighted many a bibliophile. The numerous grotesque drawings by the perverse King (that is to be felt in so much of the text, and will some day, no doubt, have a curious interest as indicative of a strange moment in the characteristic of our time, when, in certain influential quarters, sheer ugliness and vulgarity, handled sometimes, as here, with diabolical skill, seem to constitute a mystical cult.

This is unquestionably a desirable book that a trader is safe to buy for the rise.

Having emphasized the physical value of the work, that is to say, having rendered it into a high price, the translator, it is a high privilege to point out that which, if it is to be sacrilegious to call it God's, is at least beyond the function of money to measure. J. U. Nicholson, the translator, is a lyric poet of considerable gifts, several of whose poems have been written with enthusiasm. In his own right as a maker, he deserves considerably more attention than he has thus far received, although he has by no means been overlooked; and he is in every way equipped for the large task he has assumed. He has translated with rare skill and, seemingly, with unwavering faithfulness, not only all that is certainly known to have been written by Villon, but also everything that, with apparently good reason, has been attributed to the fifteenth century poet. The copious notes at the end of the second volume reveal a surprising breadth of research, and the introduction, occupying 123 pages, is surely a masterly essay in constructive criticism, however other specialists on the subject may differ from some of Mr. Nicholson's judgments.

In his introduction it is the translator's purpose to uncover something more of the real Villon than may be found in the romantic legends that have accumulated about the name during more than four centuries. First of all, Mr. Nicholson undertakes to determine who Villon was by way of getting more light on the real meaning of the poet's work. Whether or not he has succeeded in establishing the identity of the hapless wanderer, this writer is not competent to say; but he appears to have convincing reasons for believing that Francois Villon was born Francois de Montcorbier, the son of a noble family. 7500 AT PAGEANT DEPICTING FALL OF KASKASKIA IN 1778

Chester (Ill.) Celebrates 150th Anniversary of Historic Event on Height Overlooking Site.

A crowd of 7500 persons celebrated the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the capture of Fort Kaskaskia by George Rogers Clark with a program at Chester, Ill., yesterday, sponsored by the Northwest Territory Commission. Telling women from Chester, Sparta and Belleville participated in the pageant. Clark's expedition at the head of a group of Kentucky riflemen was depicted, culminating in the capture of Fort Kaskaskia July 4, 1778. The setting for the pageant was the Belmont overlooking the site of the old fortress.

Speakers at the celebration included Theodore Pease, editor of the publication of the Illinois Historical Society, and Ralph Lockwood of Bloomington, Indiana, representing the Government of Indiana. Pease stressed the significance in the fall of Fort Kaskaskia in that it opened the Middle West to colonists.

NEW AIR RAIL ROUTE TO NORTHWEST ANNOUNCED

CHICAGO, July 5.—A new air rail route from Chicago to the Northwest coast by way of St. Paul and Minneapolis is to be operated by the Transcontinental Air Transport, it was announced by Col. Paul Henderson, general manager of the service.

The new line will be conducted by the Northwest Airways, in conjunction with the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago Northwestern Railways. Service probably will start within a month.

At its inauguration, planes will leave Chicago to connect with westbound trains of the three railways at St. Paul, and from there the passengers will travel by train to the coast. Later, another hop is to be added.

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF FRANÇOIS VILLON. Translated with an Introduction and Notes by J. U. Nicholson. 2 vols. (Cov. Friele, New York.)

The first edition, numbered and signed by the translator, is limited to 500 copies, and the typography is of the highest quality. The "Golden Book," issued during the past winter, delighted many a bibliophile. The numerous exquisite drawings by Albrecht Dürer, which are so much a part of the text, and will come, no doubt, have a curious interest as indicative of a strange mental bias characteristic of our time, when, in certain influential quarters, sheer ugliness and vulgarity, handled sometimes, as here, with diabolical skill, seem to constitute a mystical cult.

This is unquestionably a desirable item that a trader is safe to buy for the rise.

Having emphasized the physical value of the work, that is to say, having rendered unto Caesar that which is Caesar's, it is a high privilege to point out that which, if it be sacrilegious to call it God's, is at least beyond the function of money to measure. J. U. Nicholson, the translator, is a lyric poet of exceptional gifts, several of whose volumes have been noted here with enthusiasm. In his own right as a maker, he deserves considerably more attention than he has thus far received, although he has by no means been overlooked; and he is in every way equipped for the large task he has assumed. First of all, Mr. Nicholson undertakes to determine who Villon was by way of getting more light on the real meaning of the poet's work. Whether or not he has succeeded in establishing the identity of the inspired wastrel, his writer is not competent to say, but he appears to have convincing reasons for believing that François Villon was born François de Montcorbier, the son of a noble family. How he lost his heritage and why he assumed the name by which he is known, makes an intensely interesting story as Mr. Nicholson tells it. What seems more important is the fact that in the light of Mr. Nicholson's well-supported theory many of the poems take on a far deeper significance than would otherwise be apparent.

It is probable that more copies of this work will be sold because of the "frankness" of the translation than from any sincere appreciation of Mr. Nicholson's honest purpose. There has been no effort to bowdlerize Villon—and why, indeed, should Villon be represented as something other than what he was? But genuine honesty has unmistakable earmarks, and it is clear enough that Mr. Nicholson has been actuated by no pimply prudences. "I have been asked," he writes, "why I have not softened some of the more offensive expressions, retaining the sense without the shocking vulgarity of language. My reply has been, that to do so would be to alter the work of a dead artist, and I am not quite scoundrel enough for that." It is a good answer, and obviously given with complete sincerity. On who does not care to read Villon, need not read him; and one who reads him for his "daring" language and his occasionally scurrilous themes will, in that childish mood, be sure to miss the vital point.

As an indication of Mr. Nicholson's poetic equipment for his task, the following "Ballade by the Translator" should be sufficient.

Paris—1456.

Grim winter stars and goblin moons

Peep through their ragged winding sheet,

And many a shadow sweeps and swoons

As Paris dreams and gray wolves meet;

The watch goes by on crunching feet

To halt within yon tavern's light.

In envy of its ease and heat—

Villon is drinking deep tonight.

Fair Ysabeau beside him croons

A love-ballade of haunting beat;

The Abbess broods on yesternoon

When sparrows quarreled among the wheat;

And now a catch roars out to greet

New-headed stoups or put to flight

The wall of night winds haggard with sleet—

Villon is drinking deep tonight.

Poor beggar of small royal bloods,

Cutpurse and drabber, dicer,

cheat,

Fellow to swordsmen, sots, buffoons,

Hunted anon for gallows-meat;

Yet singer of high songs and sweet,

Tender of one grown old and white,

And soothsayer for stew and street,

Villon is drinking deep tonight.

Envoi.

My lords and gentlemen, we eat

Toss pots and part from sound and sight.

I wonder in what innle seat

Villon is drinking deep tonight!

GARDEN THEATER TO BE REOPENED ON SUNDAY

Guarantee of $10,000 for Reorganization, Following Recent Blow-Up.

The musical comedy season at the Garden Theater, which blew up last Sunday night when stage hands demanded cash and failed to get it, will be revived next Sunday with new financial backing, it is announced today.

"Ready, Be Good" will be the first show under the new management, and the promoters hope the weather will be good also, as it was rainy weather which caused $50,000 loss during the first month of the season. Productions will continue under the direction of Charles Sinclair, but the former operating company, Charles Sinclair Inc., backed financially by Earl C. Thompson and James E. Powers Jr., insurance agents, has passed out of existence. The new business manager is F. D. McDonald Jr., concessionaire at the Garden Theater.

"Five business men have put up $10,000 each to 'Ready, Be Good,' paying for the cast, chorus, orchestra, stage hands and incidental expenses," McDonald said. "The receipts will be held in trust by a committee, and the guarantee will be repaid out of the first profits. After they are paid in full, they will share in the remaining profits, 50-50, with Sinclair and myself. We plan to extend the season for eight or ten more weeks. The cast will remain intact and the high quality of productions will be maintained."

"The committee of trustees to administer finances will be composed of Jack Squires, local business man; Benjamin L. Rader, representing the musicians; myself, and a representative of the guarantors."

"Although the new management is not liable for the debts of the old corporation, we have decided to set aside 10 per cent of the net profits to apply on the old debts."

A rehearsal is scheduled for tonight. Tickets will be on sale tomorrow.

BRITISH CATHOLIC PRELATE DIES

By the Associated Press.

SALISBURY, England, July 5.—

Mr. Francis Bickerstaffe-Drew, noted Roman Catholic prelate, died here yesterday. Mr. Bickerstaffe-Drew, who was born in 1858, was ordained in 1884 and served as chaplain in the British army for many years. He served in the war in 1914 and 1915, and was mentioned in dispatches. He was assistant principal Roman Catholic chaplain in 1918.

He was Private Chamberlain of his late Holiness Pope Leo XIII in 1891; Private Chamberlain of his late Holiness Pope Pius X in 1904; and a member of the Pontifical chamber of Malta since 1900 and was made Knight of the Sacred Military Order of the Holy Sepulcher and a Count in 1909.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 4.—Louis Lipsky of New York was re-elected president of the Zionist organization of America last night by an overwhelming vote, after a report providing for the inclusion of that office in the constitution had been adopted at the annual convention here.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 5.

LIB tongues so responsive to trifler minds in private are often mute in public. With the customary few exceptions, the most intellectual New Yorkers are

"floofs" as after-dinner speakers

When called upon suddenly, they flounder in helpless despair.

An elocution teacher, who has taught many to make finished talks, is unable himself to rise to the occasion. Oratory is a tricky gift at best. Many who have had a forensic flair for years suddenly face an audience bereft of speech and rarely are they able to gain control of themselves again.

Frequently enough, men always ready and anxious to make a speech upon any subject at any occasion are rarely finished speakers. They are merely yappers who have mistaken windiness for oratory. The best speakers are those who have an inherent timidity for public speaking.

Broadway, for instance, has numerous well-cracking wits who whose duties made it imperative to attend dinners of a public nature.

When introduced, he would turn red, make a bow and sit down in confusion. Banqueters looked up on him pityingly and wondered a little just why he came.

About a year ago as he sat in torture again awaiting his turn to make a spectacle of himself, he suddenly reasoned he certainly had an intellectual equipment to compare with anyone present and could express himself in print far better than they.

Too, he had conversed at one time or another with every man present. In the midst of these reflections he was called upon. He stood for a few seconds for his head to clear, and decided to forget everyone present and address his remarks solely to an intimate friend present. His speech was eloquent. He had broken the spell.

The most astonishing orator to me was W. J. Bryan. It was not so much what he said but his dramatic delivery—his manner of whipping a whisper into a roar.

He was often called a mountebank,

but it was difficult to hear his speeches and doubt his sincerity.

He may have been wrong, but he had the eloquent ring of one who feels he is right.

ONE of New York's most gifted after-dinner speakers was the late Renold Wolf, a dramatic critic. He had the sublime gift of chocking off a sob with a hearty laugh. And he would never speak for more than 15 minutes.

THE most expensively fitted traveling case for a lady has just been completed by a New York jeweler. It was especially made for the daughter of a rich family for a honeymoon trip around the world. The lady prepared a list of 42 articles she believed she would need on her journey. All the articles were mounted with gold and had inset ebony monograms. The case covering was of pin seal. Complete it cost $3500.

That much money not so long ago would have been sufficient to defray expenses of a first-class wedding trip to Niagara Falls and buy a completely furnished home for the bride.

A GREENWICH VILLAGE

snooper reports that one of the dreamy poets has a lavender com-mode. His typewriter is tinted lavender, the smock he wears in the throes of creation is of the hue, the studio is flooded with lavender light and so on. In our crochety mean way we'd like to sneak into his bedroom some day and dye his powder puff yellow just to spoil the effect.

There is only one drawback for those poets suffering with complexes, inhibitions and such. No one ever prints their poems.

COMMISSIONER URGES OUTER PARK SYSTEM

City Should Acquire 20,000 Acres on Outskirts, Pape Says in Report.

The need of an outer park system of approximately 20,000 acres again is urged by Park Commissioner Pape in his annual report to Director of Public Welfare Salisbury.

Pape points out in the report that the many attractions offered in the parks, particularly the municipal opera, Zoo, floral displays and games have made the parks "the playgrounds not only of the citizens of St. Louis, but of thousands of out-of-town visitors."

Pape suggests that available property on the outskirts of the city be acquired under an early bond issue as an outer park system similar to that being developed in Chicago. The report also expresses the hope that the Commission will speed up the work of acquiring additional playgrounds within the city. Playgrounds are particularly needed in the Negro district, the report states. The necessity of building hard surface roadways in the parks is stressed by Pape, who reports that practically all of the main drives had to be resurfaced during the fiscal year ending March 31.

Total expenditures of the Park Department for the fiscal period amounted to $972,082. This sum does not include maintenance of the Zoo and Art Museum, which are financed by a direct tax. The chief individual expenditure was for the municipal golf links, amounting to $33,811. A total of 136,640 games was played over the links in the year. Permits were divided into 67,616 for the 9-hole course, 29,145 for the 18-hole course and 593 annual permits. A fee of $10 is charged for annual permits, an 18-hole permit costs 50 cents and a 9-hole permit 25 cents. The cost to the city of maintaining the various courses is placed in the report at 24.7 cents a game.

Reports on other forms of athletics include baseball, attracting 1,975,000 spectators at a cost of $5345; soccer, which cost only $1985 and attracted 1,110,000 spectators, and 206,875 games of tennis, which required an outlay of $12,251. Tennis permits to the number of 9951 were issued at a fee of $1 each.

Forty-four band concerts were held in the parks during the year, the attendance being 126,310 persons. The salary of musicians was $9,911. The department realized a net profit of $18,932 from concessions in the parks, the report shows.

Girl Relates They Kept House Until He Admitted He Had a Wife and Fled.

Miss Dorothy Wyatt, 19 years old, 4637 Washington boulevard, told police yesterday that a married man had hoodwinked her into a mock marriage.

She said a man with whom she had been keeping company proposed marriage. They went to Belleville, June 7, to be married. At lunch, she said, he persuaded her to drink some whisky, and then she did not remember anything that occurred until she awoke in a hotel room in St. Louis with a wedding ring on her finger. She demanded the marriage certificate, but was put off with an explanation that it had been laid away for safe keeping, she declared. They rented an apartment on Walton avenue. From time to time she demanded the wedding certificate. The last demand was on last Saturday.

The man admitted then that there was no marriage certificate and that he already was married, but separated from his wife. Police, searching for him, found that for had checked out of a hotel just before their arrival.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

LADIES AND LOVE.
In the game of love the last card a woman should play is her heart.

A woman's love may be starved to death or frozen to death, but a man's love is nearly always choked to death or talked to death.

Perhaps the reason why a woman keeps on asking a man to tell her that he loves her is because she has a subconscious conviction that, if she can make him say it over often enough, he will come to believe it, himself.

The reason so few men complain of dyspepsia these days is probably because most of them are "starving" along on the wife's reducing diet.

Before marriage, a man is charmed by a woman's ability to see a lot of things in him—after marriage, by her ability to overlook a lot of things.

Getting the first lover, the first husband or the first job is the hardest. Most men seem to require "previous experience" in these days in everything from petting to marriage and business.

The most serious business of the younger generation appears to be its desperate effort to convince the world that it doesn't take itself seriously.

At first, a bride likes to drop in unexpectedly at her husband's office to tell him what she's been doing; later, she is apt to drop in even more unexpectedly to find out what HE's been doing.

A modern man is not abashed when a girl refuses to kiss him—he is merely amazed that she should pass up such a golden opportunity.

The old-fashioned boy got an education by burning the midnight oil; the modern boy gets most of his by burning the midnight gasoline.

Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier.

GRAY HAIRS TOO SOON.

WOMEN of our "mothers" epoch talked about the "raggedy" of the first gray hair, a tragedy which usually was enacted somewhere around the fiftieth birthday.

But times—and scalps—have changed almost alarmingly. Several days ago we were shown a "young man" of perhaps none or in who flaunted an iron-gray mane.

Not two or three or even a small patch of gray hairs, mark you, but hundreds of them interspersed with blond ones. Otherwise, the child appeared to be a perfectly normal, little specimen.

He was an exception, of course, and the case is cited merely as one of passing interest. However, there is nothing exceptional at all today about the appearance of gray hairs in the gay, bright twenties. The Beauty Shop has no statistics on the matter, but it happens to know intimately a sufficient number of cases to justify the publication of this article.

Now, as to the causes of prematurely gray hair, those offered by the best authorities on the hair and scalp are many, varied and some altogether contradictory. One blames it on heredity and another on "nerves" pure and simple, without regard to the patient's antecedents.

One thing, though, that they all seem to agree upon is that the hair derives its vitality, color, beauty, everything that makes hair poor hair or wonderful hair, from the blood. It would seem, therefore, that the logical way to deal with prematurely graying hair—at least, to forestall further graying—is to store up a good quality of first quality blood and then by means of correct scalp massage induce it to come in close contact with the hair roots.

Regular living and a diet of wholesome, vitamin-yielding foods, plus the drinking of sufficient pure water daily, constitutes, in the majority of instances, as good a formula as any for encouraging the proper sort of blood stream.

As to what is generally conceded to be the correct thing in scalp massage, you may take your choice of pinching the scalp all over, between the thumb and forefinger, or slowly moving the whole scalp back and forth across the head, or practicing the old, familiar rotary movement. To get the most out of the latter, brace the thumbs somewhere about the hairline at back of the head, then, with the fingertips of each hand held close together, execute a deep, slow rotary motion all over the scalp, beginning at the back and sides and working upward toward the center.

As a parting suggestion in dealing with the delicate and rather difficult problem of prematurely graying hair, we are much inclined to agree with the "nerves" theory, believing that the cultivation of a serene outlook upon life, the control of the worry habit, the habit of fear, the tendency to become irritated easily, all these things help mightily to keep the face unlined, the eyes young and the hair the color it was "born."

The Bustle Bow.

Quits in the modern manner are frocks of heavy white or just off-the-white taffeta, with huge bows of contrasting taffeta placed in the back. The skirts are wide and full.

A tablespoon of sugar to a gallon of water when rinsing the spaghetti dress will give it a body without being too stiff.

Goat Fur Coats

May Be Fall Fad

Fur coats for fall and winter in Paris show originality of cut and indicate that goat fur is to be a favorite.

Dyed brown goat from the Indies is used in combination with white rabbit. In one model, the rabbit collar is upstanding like the ruffs popular in the days of Queen Elizabeth. The white rabbit cuffs flare conspicuously, and the skirt has numerous godets of rabbit.

Dyed summer ermine appears as the collar and cuffs on cloth dresses for street wear in the early fall.

A warm shade of brown dyed ermine is used on a beige wool dress. The collar is the round Dutch style with long ribbon ties. The turn back ermine cuffs are three inches deep. With brown collar and cuffs it is considered chic to wear a suede belt of the same tone.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

TOMORROW.

TOMORROW will be shining,
Tomorrow will be gay,
Its hours brimmed with loveliness
We may have missed today.

Tomorrow lends us courage
To face today's defeat;
Whatever pain the present holds,
Tomorrow will be sweet.

We paint it with enchantment,
The color of the rose,
Each flawless thing we plan and build
Into tomorrow goes.

From none does hope withhold it,
To none is it denied;
Tomorrow, magic day, whose dawn
Will bring dreams satisfied.

Sonny's New Suit Lets in Sunlight

THE sun suit, a recent invention of the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, adds to the comfort and health of children. This suit has style in cut and color, but that is not its real purpose. Clothing and textile specialists have devised it so that the wardrobe of the 3-year-old will be up to date with findings of scientists on vitamins and the beneficial effects of sunlight (heliotherapy).

Through the sleeveless, open-mesh waists of these suits, ultra-violet rays from direct sunlight can penetrate and change chemical substances in the skin to vitamin D. This so-called vitamin D in turn enables the child to use calcium and phosphorus from his food more efficiently and grow better bones and teeth. If the child has a tendency toward rickets, the ultra-violet rays will help prevent or cure. These sun suits, however, are not for sick children, but to help well children and to make sun baths possible at play in town or country.

Just a Precaution.

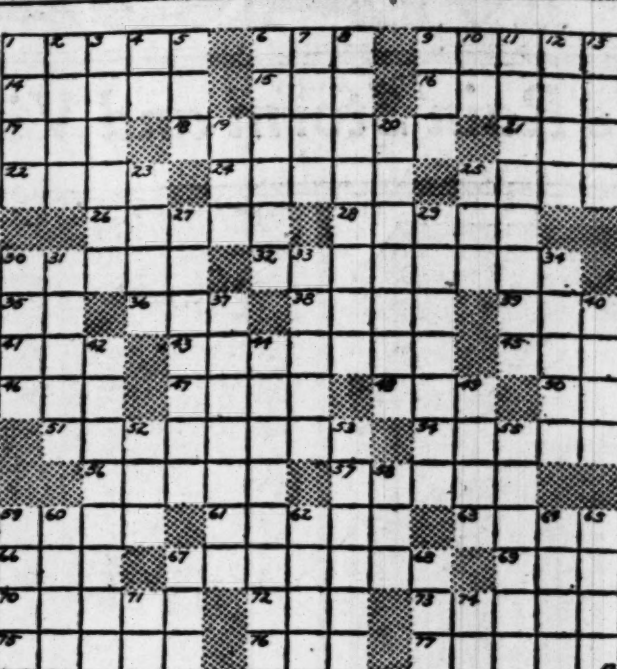

Once a week put a large lump of washing soda in the sink and pour over it boiling water until it has all washed down the drain. It will prevent the grease from accumulating and stopping up the drain and also take away any unpleasant odors from around the sink.

The Modern Mermaid.

Bizarre and highly colored motifs of things pertaining to the sea decorate bathing suits in an amusing manner. Borders and bodice motifs may be silhouettes of fish or ships.

Brushes should be dried with the bristles turned downward, so the water will not soak into the backs of the brushes and loosen the bristles.

THE WAY SUE TO LOU

A WOMAN
—By—
Marguerite Moores Marshall

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

There is a woman anywhere who hasn't at some time for some reason, had that feeling of new, deep, thrilling satisfaction that she is alive in a world which, for all its pain and irony, has its hours of delight? Many women take their new lease of life when they fall in love, or with the coming of their child—or a find it in writing a book which almost says what they want to say. Or in creating a role, or carving a statue. Or making a success of the business for which everyone prophesied failure.

Many women know that the new lease of life isn't necessarily dependent on the personal achievement of the few.

For the love and children of the many. Every woman who has loved a man—and, happily, this means nearly EVERY woman—gets this quickening sense of a new lease of life.

When she comes back home after long absence, when—for one of the many causes that keep the American scene shifting—her home seemed in danger of change, loss, destruction—and then all well, and it's HER home again! Other women will know how we feel—because THEY have felt that way.

Now that we've signed "the papers" that give us a new lease of life.

For the beach bungalow, home of our heart, and for all that makes it so: the singing sea, blue-and-gold in sunlight, laughing to show teeth of white foam.

Or green-gray-silver under a misty sky. Or black-and-silver-gilt beneath the glimmers of the moon, and always with coolness and softness and tingling, tumbling exhilaration in its embrace.

Or long, white, sea-sodden beach, patterned with bird-tracks in the early morning, and stained with rosy prisms beneath the sunset.

Western sky where the sun changes like a mandarin-red Chinese lantern against curtains of gold and mauve and flamingo.

Or that cast their flamingo reflection on tide-changed sand; or the little boat that trudges sturdily across a blue, gull-haunted bay; or the release of cool night after feverish days in a hot town; or the peace, beauty, a salt-tinged wind.

As all our again, as it's many another fortunate woman's, and many a woman knows, as we do, how such a home compensates for weariness, tortured nerves, self-denial, disappointment and all the ingenious hurts that life can deal.

As Antares gained new strength when he touched the earth, so a woman gains, from one small spot of earth that she loves a new lease of life!

A SHOCKING WOMAN. Styles in the shocking do change. A caricature of one of the spring's "Marquises de Seignelay" life of "Julie de Lespinasse," an eighteenth century siren—reminds us that one of the first women-up novels we ever read was about this same fair lady. Mrs. Humphry Ward was the author, the title was "Lady Rose's Daughter," and—here's the joke—in that remote, refined past, even respectability was a shocker! They had a little trick about it.

A lady named Rose had a daughter. Who did things no lady had ought to do.

The people all said: "She ought not to be read—she ought to be read to."

A "daring" novel, indeed—we have anybody to read it nowadays.

Bulldozers in New York have increased by 54, over the early months of 1927. In contemplation of the 7-cent fare?

PROVERBS. (For Ladies Only.) He who steals my good name steals trash, but he who robs me of my purse takes that which not riches him and leaves my companion poor indeed.

A stick in time may convince a prospective husband. A rolling stone is O K if it's genuine.

A girl is known by the company she keeps—and how! Silence makes the heart feel better to look for something better. Procrastination is the thief of time.

Look before you leap. Look before you leap. Look before you leap.

Soiled Overalls. Bread the soiled overalls flat on the board or side of the tub and scrub with a stiff scrubbing brush. You will find it the easiest way to clean these bulky articles.

Left-Overs. The cold baked potatoes into hot water for a minute, then place in a casserole, oven until heated through and the family will think they are freshly baked.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

WHITEY MEETS A BROTHER.

On family ties do not depend; in times of stress they're apt to end.—Old Mother Nature.

WHITEY, the runaway Rabbit, who had reached the bramble-tangle on the edge of the Old Pasture just in time to escape the reaching claws of Whittell the Marsh Hawk, was not so sure as he had been that the "Great World" was the place for him. Already he had had two frights and one very narrow escape. How thankful he was for that bramble-tangle. He crept to the very middle of it and there he sat—and shivered as he thought of what might have happened to him. He was afraid to leave the bramble-tangle.

Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun went to bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows came creeping out across the Old Pasture and across the Green Meadows. Many times had Whitey sat just within the edge of the dear Old Briar-patch beside his mother and watched those Black Shadows come creeping behind the purple hills. Then they were very different now. Whitey shivered.

It grew darker and darker. The voice of Hooty the Owl came ringing across the Old Pasture. Whitey had heard it before, but never had it sounded as it did now. Every time he heard that terrible wailing cry as if he would jump out of his skin. By and by he heard the rustle of leaves. He held his breath. Someone was coming, but who could it be? He heard the patter of feet just outside the bramble-tangle. Whitey crouched back and his pink eyes were wide with fear. And then that wobbly little nose of his caught a familiar scent. It was the Rabbit scent.

It was one of his brothers. You know, his brothers and sisters had left the dear Old Briar-patch sometime before Whitey had. "Oh!" exclaimed Whitey. "It's you, is it?" And there was relief and joy in his voice. "Oh!" exclaimed his brother.

"It's you, is it?" and in his voice was disgust. "Yes," replied Whitey meekly. "It's me."

"How long have you been here?" asked his brother. "Just a little while," replied Whitey. "I left the dear Old Briar-patch this afternoon, and I had two dreadful adventures on the way here."

"Poo!" said his brother. "What are you going to do now?" "I don't know," replied Whitey. "I might come along with you, I suppose you know all about it up here in the Old Pasture."

"I know enough to know that you are not coming with me," replied his brother bluntly. "Why not?" asked Whitey. "Because," replied his brother, "it is hard enough to keep a whole skin as it is. I certainly don't want that white coat of yours along. You'll have to look out for yourself. Don't expect me to help. If you'll take my advice, you'll change your coat."

With this, Whitey's brother turned and away he went. Poor Whitey! He would have given anything to change that coat, but of course he couldn't change it. At least, he thought he couldn't.

Girl Gets a Medal For Rescuing Man TWENTY-YEAR-OLD girl, Miss Lucy Donaldson, of Sydney, Australia, is wearing the gold medal of the Royal Shipwreck and Relief Society for having rescued a fellow swimmer from the attack of a shark.

She and a girl friend were bathing in the surf one evening after all other bathers but one man had left the water.

When the man threw up his arms and shouted, "Help. A shark has got me," Miss Donaldson sent her companion to shore for help and herself swam to his rescue. Splashing the water vigorously, she frightened off the shark and succeeded in dragging the man, badly injured, to shallow water.

ETIQUETTE By Katharine de Peyster.

TAKEN "ON FAITH." I S a gentleman introduced to a lady, or a lady to a gentleman?

2. When a couple goes to the movies and gets in the theater in the middle of the show, who makes the first move to leave when that part of the show is again reached?

3. Recently four of us went to another town for a day and met another couple there, who were friends of my fiancée's and myself. Who should have introduced them, my fiancée or I?

4. I am soon going away for six months and am going to be given a party first. One couple the hostess-to-be has never met, and it will be impossible for her to do so until the evening of the party. In such a case, should I write the note of invitation?

5. The last name of my fiancée begins with the letters McD. How should I have my silverware engraved?

6. A gentleman is introduced to a lady. 7. It usually happens that they start simultaneously to leave, but, if there is any hesitation on the part of either, the girl would be given the privilege of indicating that she is ready to leave. The woman is always given this kind of prerogative.

Exercise Facts and Fallacies

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

IT SEEMS that, way back in the "seventies" of the last century, the world went more or less crazy on the subjects of exercise and human endurance. Many abuses, absurd upon their face, were perpetrated, often with crippling or fatal consequences. The result was that athletics, especially violent exercise and endurance tests, received a black eye. And, like most objects with a black eye, they have had and are still having a hard time to get back within the pale of popular approval.

It was even thought, as a result of the abuses of the "seventies," that athletics might cause insanity, and still more the lesser nervous disorders. Now we know that the strain of modern publicity, competition, anxiety, public adulation and the like may well lead to a nervous condition, but this is not related to the physical exertion.

Competitive physical exercise means a continuous overflow of nervous impulses to the muscles. It also means the exercise of complex processes involved in co-ordinating skilled movement. There is also an expenditure of energy in focusing attention, together with excitement, apprehension and the use of skilled judgment. This may produce in highly strung people a condition of nervous overstrain.

While all this is true, the fact remains that, from ordinary quiet healthy exercise, no possible harm to the nervous system can arise. But exercise, to be safe, must be taken with a little common sense. Thus the influence of exercise upon digestion is beneficial, but the danger of violent exercise immediately after a heavy meal must be remembered.

Many people believe that appendicitis and duodenal ulcer are more common in athletic young men. There are some reasons for this theory. The chief reason is to be found in the contractions of the abdominal muscles, which force these organs down into the pelvis so that the intestine sags and becomes distended, with a tendency to give way. This is especially true in persons in whom there already exists either a tendency to such abdominal displacements or the displacements themselves already have become established.

There has been much anxiety in times past on account of the appearance of albumen or casts in the urine of athletes, but recent work has made it quite clear that these do not mean the presence of disease. Any ill-effects of exercise on the kidney, even from the most violent exercise, are purely temporary in otherwise healthy persons.

There does seem to be some evidence for a greater liability of rowers to pneumonia. It may be that an early stage of phthisis actually confers an athletic flair, rather than the other way round. On the other hand, it has been proved that rowers and cricketers have, on the whole, a longer life than the average man.

There is a danger of heat stroke in prolonged efforts on hot days. The temperature after long runs is between 102 and 103, but falls to normal within two hours. The 10,000 meters cross-country race at Paris in 1924 was run on a hot, humid day. Nearly all the competitors finished in collapse. Some were dazed and disoriented. Competition may increase this rise in temperature from mental as well as strictly physical causes.

OLD FASHIONS COMING BACK

By Gettier

WITH hair growing longer, hats getting wider, skirts going down, petticoats coming out in the guise of underslips and the supple girdles seeming to pre-empt a return to "Old Ironsides," many women are wondering if once more history will repeat itself and fashions which they swore never to take up again will be accepted?

French couturiers are tempting women with charming bouffant gowns differing little from the ones which appeared in France after the Restoration, except perhaps in the matter of length. Many very chic and practical women are wearing them for evening and they call for corsets, petticoats and large hats (if worn in the daytime). Premet is making one that few women can resist, in black tulle in facing of soft pink satin and trimmed with rosettes at the neck and waistline.

On the other hand, there are lovely, thin, light costumes which have an exact parallel in the slim frocks worn from 1793 to 1815, slender Grecian gowns with which corsets, petticoats and elaborate collars were discarded just as in these modern days.

One in this fashion recently seen at the fashionable "Florida" was in black chiffon and lace, typical of the slender silhouettes which have been worn for a number of years although new in proportion and detail. A peach-colored frock, seen the same evening, revealed a most graceful figure beneath it and a very striking evening gown had a bodice of fine silver beads and skirt of silver paillettes embroidered in the same silver beads.

WARWICK DEEPING

AUTHOR OF SORRELL AND SON

SYNOPSIS

Old John Pybus, formerly a book seller in London and later in Winterton, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven, when his son, Conrad, sees him there. He has been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen his father. Probyn's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead, but he looks him up at the inn at Castle Craven, where he is serving as a porter. When Lance finishes at Cambridge, he takes a room in London and after gaining his father's reluctant consent and a small allowance, he devotes himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gadsden, a manikin.

INSTALLMENT XXXV. LANCER'S WINDOW.

LANCE was silent for quite a long while, and in the silence of the beach, which he had just perceived a personal breathlessness. It may be easier to quarrel with a young man's virility than to quarrel with his work. The venerable had fired a shot at the craftsman's self-esteem. He was conscious of a moody and disquieted face drifting beside him in the greenish light under the great trees. Youth can be so sympathetic to itself, yet so distant from "Marion's" girl was cleaning out chicken houses, while little tubes of color remained untouched.

"You'll have to try and forgive me, my son."

There was a swift change. Lance's right hand got hold of the venerable's left arm. His mouth widened.

"You—of course—I'm a cub. Old Pybus right here, and there, they sat down on a dry bank under the Woodstock Park fence.

The venerable had his eyes and his thoughts on Mary Morris. He saw her in the brown leather jumper and rust-colored skirt moving in and about the little brown houses, and he had a feeling that she was affected by a hurried sky, and wet windows, and English sledge, and that if she accepted those gray days and their sadness she accepted them because life was sad. This blended the venerable accepted them because she was down to earth, and to content from the inevitable. But youth—

Old Pybus pulled at his old silver watch.

"Time to trudge."

As they passed along the "Marion's" hedge they heard a man's voice, plaintive and aggrieved.

"Mary—I've lost my pipe."

The venerable's bushy eyebrows twitched expressively.

"The pain of losing is the joy of finding."

Said Lance, "That practical young woman ought to tie it around his neck."

Lance walked from Paddington station, carrying his brown leather suitcase, glad of London because he himself was London, and especially so on this summer evening when even the smoky foliage of Parkham Crescent was sensuously sufficient. He had a window looking down upon this world of splashed legs and artificial silk, and on all the hurry and vast impatience, the huge, anonymous, greedy, thundering streets. As an artist he would not have it altered. Moreover, if he had a window overlooking the show, he also looked up at a particular window, for at half past seven on a Monday evening beauty should have ceased to pander to the beast.

The lower ash of her window was up. He had said to her before going away, "See you on Monday. Make it my evening." He let himself into No. 17, and met Mrs. Carver.

"Evening, Mrs. Carver. Anybody called?"

She blinked at him. The china jiggled on the tray. She was nervous, anything else but agitated.

"—my poor nerves! A young lady left a note for you. Will you be ready for your dinner at seven, sir?"

"I shall."

He hurried upstairs to find the note lying on his desk. He opened it and read:

Boy—so sorry. Puss has got to be good and sociable tonight. The dubs. Dancing with old elephants—another elephants. Dance and dine for fifteen and six! Flap-bang! Put on paper caps. What fools they do look in caps! Jumbo wearing a pink paper crown!

O, my poor toes! But I'll be all aboard with Boy on Tuesday. Let's be Hyde Parkers.

Thine, OLIVE.

He felt balked and angry, and he looked it. Of course, she had to go out with these old fools who paid her to dance with them at "clubs" and night shows. But what right had some bald-headed idiot, whose business should be domesticity, to get in youth's way? It was youth's way, and its right of way. He stuffed the letter into his pocket.

And at midnight, with his back to the garden railings, he confronted a full moon that was contriving to shine on him between smoky clouds. If it was raining at Castle Craven it was not yet raining in London, though rain did not matter in London as it did in the country. He was the temperate lover. He waited there, not so much for a woman as for a mouth. He was in the savage stage. He craved without the sacred compassion or the playful teasing of an older and happier tenderness.

Twice he had come blundering and groping into the orchard, calling to her like a peevish child.

He waited till a quarter to one, with the iron bars digging into his back.

At 1 o'clock he heard a taxi pull up at the door of the Crescent. He heard the bang of a door and the tapping of her shoes. He went to meet her. He saw her as a slim, sleek, sinuous streak of blackness below the whiteness of her floating face. Her very movements were exotic, jaunty, feverish, country wenchies did not move like that.

"O—Boy—"

"I had to wait—I—"

He felt both the silk of her cloak and the satin of her face.

Lying in the hammock along between two old apple trees in a far corner of the orchard and looking up at the horns of sunlight shining through the foliage, Mary Morris would sometimes wonder at life and at herself. She would take a book with her to the hammock, and there were days when the book would fall, either because it was too unattractive or the book itself too empty of life.

She insisted upon this hour in the hammock after lunch each day, and even when it was raining, and the sun was shining, and taking an old ground sheet with her, she would go under the dripping leaves. It was her one hour of relaxation, of escape from the interminable trifles of the day's routine. It meant solitude, an hour's relief from the pressure of that other personality, the one hour when she was soft to herself and hard to her brother. At first he had refused to understand or to respect this withdrawal of hers into that green corner. He had complained that deliberately she had eluded him, which was true. For with a little secret, guilty exultation she had realized that he could not find his way to her among those orchard trees.

I must have my one hour, Guy. Twice he had come blundering and groping into the orchard, calling to her like a peevish child: "Mary—Mary—"

She had raged, but in silence. She had remained perfectly still and allowed him to exhaust his persuasive egotism. For in this hour she refused to pity him; she was hard for one hour; she knew that she had to be hard. She owed it to herself, to the sweetening of her sanity, to the very patience of her pity. She had given up so much to him, and he would have taken that one hour from her had she suffered him to do it.

He was such a child. The Maxwell concert orchestra directed by Nathaniel Shilkret will play southern melodies. A paraphrase of several of the best-known Negro spirituals will open the program, and other numbers will include "Uncle Remus" by MacDowell and "Fun on the Levee" from the "Darkies Jubilee Suite."

Broadway favorites of past and present, and numbers by two of the great composers, will be included in the music which the Old Counsellor will provide for his guests on KSD at 8:00. Presenting-day Broadway offers "Rain or Shine" from the musical about that name, featuring Joe Cook.

She had a book with her that day, but she was not reading it. She lay in the hammock, but unrelated. She took with her now into this green retreat a secret fear, a doubting of the whole business, for she had begun to doubt whether her devotion was worth while. In the early days she had said to herself, "My poor paints and brushes will be put away, but he will have his music," and he had had his music, but it had not satisfied him. She had moments of panic when she wondered whether anything would satisfy him, and whether she might go on stripping herself of everything that was hers in a hopeless effort to keep him even passably happy and amused.

Even, blind, restless, temperamental child.

MAROONED FLYER WITH ITALIA CREW IS RESCUED

Lieut. Lundborg Who Crashed on Return After Picking Up Noble Taken Off Flee by Aviator.

STRANDED 13 DAYS WITH FIVE OTHERS

Planes Drop More Provisions to Them—Hope to Find Remaining Nine Alive Nearly Abandoned.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, July 4.—The chief of the Swedish rescue mission telegraphed from Spitzbergen today that Lieut. Einar-Paul Lundborg, Swedish aviator, had been rescued from the ice near Foye Island. Lieut. Lundborg was marooned when his plane overturned in an attempt to take off survivors of the Italia disaster after he had rescued Gen. Umberto Nobile.

The Swedish War Department received a message from the base ship Quest that the rescue was made by the Swedish flyer Shyberg.

The Stockholm Dagbladet Nyheter, describing the rescue of Lieut. Lundborg, says that one month and two Swedish naval hydro-airplanes started from the S. S. Quest at midnight. One of the hydro-airplanes soon afterward was forced to descend on the ice and smashed its pontoons, but these were renewed shortly.

The other machines continued on to the Nobile camp where the moth landed successfully and took off again carrying Lieut. Lundborg. It is understood that the hydro-airplanes will make an attempt as soon as possible to rescue the five men still marooned on the ice.

After taking Nobile to Spitzbergen June 12, Lundborg returned to pick up the five other men who had been marooned since the Italia's crash on May 25. He intended to pick up Natale Ceccone, motor chief of the dirigible, whose leg was broken. As he landed on the ice the airplane overturned and the skis were smashed.

By the Associated Press.
KINGS BAY, July 4.—Five marooned members of the crew of the Italia and a Swedish flyer, Lieut. Lundborg, today had enough provisions to withstand the rigors on the Arctic until rescued from their ice floe.

Swedish flyers dropped provisions, medical supplies and a radio for the marooned men. There seemed little likelihood that the Russian ice-breaker Kraasin could effect their rescue soon.

After battering its way through the ice, the vessel was halted 50 miles from the coastways with a damaged propeller. While this was being repaired the ship drifted with the heavy and almost impenetrable ice.

That the five marooned members of the dirigible crew and Gen. Umberto Nobile would be the only ones to come out alive of the fatal trip to the North Pole seems virtually a certainty today. Since May 25, when the balloon part of the airship drifted eastward and apparently caught fire, nothing has been heard of the six men aboard it. Gen. Nobile said that, if the balloon itself had caught fire there was no hope that any aboard could have escaped death.

The provisions of these six men must be running low by now, if they have survived and their plight would be desperate.

Hope that three other members of the crew who started for land from the Nobile group would be found was exceedingly slim today when reports began to come in from parties which had started out to look for them.

Students of the Alpine Club reported they had carefully explored the whole northern coast of Northeast Land to a point seven miles from Cape Leigh Smith without finding any trace of them. Swedish and Norwegian airplanes explored outer Repe Island, north of Northeast Land, and an island immediately to the south of it, and found no one on either.

Another Swedish flyer searched along the eastern and southern coasts of Northeast Land without finding any trace of Roald Amundsen and the five men missing with him.
